THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

VOL. XXII ATLANTA, GA., THURSDAY, MORNING, SEPTEMBER 18, 1890.--TEN PAGES. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

ANOTHER RAIL LINE

MAY CONNECT ATLANTA WITH THE B. AND O. SYSTEM.

DEVELOPMENTS CLOSELY WATCHED.

The Sale of the Shenandoah Valley Railroad Likely to Lead to Important Results —What the B. and O. Lost.

BALTIMORE, Md., September 17.—[Special.]—Discussion incident to the approaching sale of the Shenandoah Valley railroad, at Roanoke, on the 30th instant, develops, to a marked degree, Baltimore's desire to establish a route to Atlanta and the south, by way of the Baltimore and Ohio.

THE SUN SPEAKS.

The Sun, in its leading editorial today, says:

It is a striking fact that the city of Baltimore, which, before the period of railways, had the trade of the valley of Virginia all the way through to Bristol, and to the country south and west of that point, now, after fifty years of railroad building, is still without a railroad line through that magnificent and rapidly developing region. Not that Baltimore has not endeavored, as a municipality and through the efforts of its individual citizens, to remedy this deficiency. Th million dollars advanced by the city to the valley branch of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, to aid in the construction of a road through the valley, to Salem, Va., is proof of its active interest in the matter, and when the chance to acquire control of the Atlanta and Charlotte passed by the sale of the control of the Virginia Midland, was effected, the Baltimore public saw that an awful blunder had been made, but the shock the incident gave the community was mitigated by the assumption by everybody that the surrender of that line implied a purpose on the part of the Baltimore and Ohio to push southward its line by way of the valley of Virginia.

Southern traffic was recognized as greater in volume, more steady and more profitable than the western, divided as the latter was between numerous wealthy and powerful competitors. Of course, everybody said when the Piedmont route was given over to the Richmond and Danville, of course the valley road will now be pushed on via Salem to Atlanta, but this has not been done. Baltimore's trust and the Baltimore and Ohio's interest in the completion of the valley road were dismissed, it appears, from the mind of the Baltimore and Ohio management, not, however, with impunity. The Baltimore and Ohio has seen the territory reserved for it in the valley and southward invaded successively by the Shenandoah Valley and the Richmond and Alleghany, and now the Roanoke and Southern is being built, which will make an admirable alley for any road terminating at Roanoke or Salem. Traffic that could have been made by suitable branch lines to swell the revenues of the Baltimore and Ohio, has now passed irrevocably to roads that its neglect, at least, partly caused to be built. Had a tithe of the money expended in other directions been spent to retain and enlarge southern business, the Baltimore and Ohio would now be drawing wealth for itself and this city, to which it owes so much, from an ample and constantly growing through trade, to say nothing of the profitable local trade of the valley.

WATCHED AT OTHER POINTS.

The disposal of the road is being watched with considerable interest. The Alexandria Gazette says;

It is privately reported in railroad circles in this city that the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company has completed arrangements for the purchase of the Shenandoah Valley railroad, which road is to be sold at public auction at Roanoke, on the 30th instant. The Shenandoah Valley road runs from Hagerstown, Md., to Roanoke, Va., a distance of 239 miles, and is to be sold under a deed of trust held by the Fidelity Insurance, Trust and Safe Deposit Company of Philadelphia, and others. It has, heretofore, been generally understood that the Shenandoah Valley road would be purchased either by the Norfolk and Western or the Chesapeake and Ohio, but to secure control of the valley trade and to make southwest connections, it is said that the Richmond and Danville people have determined to secure the road, and have made the necessary arrangements for so doing.

IMPORTANT FOR THE MARIETTA AND NORTH GEORGIA.

In this connection the purchase of the Shenandoah Valley by the Baltimore and Ohio would at once bring the Marietta and North Georgia to the front and give Atlanta another through route to the east and west. The Marietta and north Georgia, as soon as the Atlanta extension from Marietta is made, will be operated as a through line from Atlanta to Knoxville. The Knoxville and Cumberland Gap, under virtually the same control, extends the connection to Middlesborough. Bristol will be reached in a few months by an extension from the Knoxville and Cumberland Gap, which work is under contract.

With the Baltimore and Ohio or any of the eastern systems now tapping the Shenandoah Valley, in control of it, only an independent connection between Bristol and Roanoke would remain to make another grand system between the south and east.

CLARK HOWELL.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

President Palmer Names the Executive Committee.

CHICAGO, September 17.—The world's fair commission met this morning, and President Palmer announced his selection of an executive committee. This committee will name the director general, and by virtue of its position will be most important in connection with the exposition. The committee will no doubt be accepted by the commission without opposition. The committee is as follows:

Mark L. McDonald, California; R. C. Kerens, Missouri; Henry Exall, Texas; P. A. B. Weidner, Pennsylvania, all of whom are commissioners at large; John T. Harris, Virginia; William J. Sewell, New Jersey; B. B. Smalley, Vermont; E. B. Martindale, Indiana; John Boyd Thatcher; New York; A. T. Ewing, Illinois; William S. King, Iowa; H. G. Clapp, Ohio; L. McLaws, Georgia; Francis Breed, Massachusetts; Euclid Martin, Nebraska; R. R. Price, Kansas; M. D. Harrison, Minnesota; James E. Butt, West Virginia; P. S. Williams, Tennessee; Joseph Hirst, Florida; R. L. Saunders, Mississippi; L. H. Hershfield, Montana; R. S. Goodell, Colorado; A. T. Britton, District of Columbia, and James A. McKenzie, Kentucky. The committee is composed of thirteen democrats and thirteen republicans. The salaries prefixed are as follows: President, $12,000 a year; secretary, $10,000; director general, $15,000. It is believed here that George R. Davis, of Illinois, will be made director general, as his supporters claims a majority of local directors, as well as the support of President Palmer, P. A. B. Weidner and other influential members of the national commission.

TIGHT MONEY RUINED THEM.

Failure of a Large Firm of Brokers in Boston.

BOSTON, September 17.—R. Gardner Chase & Co., bankers and brokers, at 148 Devonshire street, in the Equitable building, have failed. The firm has assigned to James L. Phelps, general manager of the National Life Insurance Company, 159 Devonshire street. The firm is Boston correspondent of S. V. White & Co., of New York. The members are R. Gardner Chase and Charles E. Legg, of Chelsea. It is stated that lately they have been doing a large business in western railway stock, and on the street the general cause given for the failure is that they were caught short of the market. Assignee Phelps immediately took charge of their affairs. He says that the liabilities are likely to amount to $2,000,000, and may go over that. What there is in the way of assets can only be determined by an examination. He declines to make a further statement at present. George R. Chase, son of the senior member of the house, and chief clerk, said this afternoon:

"The trouble is due wholly to tight money. Calls upon us have been greater than we could withstand. Our collaterals shrank in value beyond all expectation, and much as we endeavored to avert a suspension, we have been forced to it. No outside transaction or speculations has led to this trouble. It is tight money and nothing else.

CANADIAN ANNEXATION.

The Quebec Telegraph Says We Will Surely Absorb the Dominion.

OTTAWA, September 17.—Mayor Sol White, of Windsor, has on more than one occasion publicly announced himself as annexationist, and several newspapers of the independent press have hinted at it as among the possibilities, but it remained for The Quebec Telegraph to be the first government organ to come out squarely on the annexation ticket and tell the people of the Dominion that the welfare of Canada depends upon a political alliance with the United States. The Telegraph has opened the ball with a startling editorial in its Saturday issue in favor of annexation. The Telegraph is not only a supporter of Sir John MacDonald's government, but receives a large share of patronage from the Dominion treasury, and the stand it has taken is all the more significant.

"I was never so much surprised in my life," remarked a leading politician today, "as when I read the Telegraph's editorial under the heading of 'Annexation Ripening.' It clearly points to the critical state of affairs within the borders of the dominion and the rapid headway the movement in favor of annexation with the United States is making. Canadians are tiring of conducting their business and public affairs on sentimental principles, and are now beginning to realize that their future prosperity depends upon a political union with the United States."

Members of the cabinet refuse to say anything about The Telegraph's editorial beyond ridiculing it as "one man's opinion."

A BOAT LOAD OF NEGROES.

Portuguese Carrying on the Slave Trade in South Africa.

CAPE TOWN, September 17.—Great excitement has been caused here by the arrival of a Portuguese steamer loaded with kidnapped natives from Mozambique en route to the west coast. A tribunal here decided that it was unable to interfere with the steamer, but fourteen natives who, after a desperate attempt, succeeded in escaping from the steamer, were declared free, and the tribunal refused to assist in recapturing them. The government referred the matter to the government at London. In the meantime the steamer proceeded.

The Slave Trade Increasing.

ZANZIBAR, September 17.—The slavery proclamation was signed by the German commanders of the respective states. Brokers' houses are now full of slaves, having been established under German license. Permits to recover runaways will lead to much kidnaping of free natives. The news of the proclamation has spread over the whole coast, and traffic has revived to an extent unknown in thirty years.

MEETING OF THE EMPERORS.

They Repeatedly Embraced and Kissed Each Other.

ROHNSTOCK, September 17.—Emperor William received Emperor Francis Joseph at the depot here this afternoon. The two emperors repeatedly embraced and kissed each other. Count Kalnoky was cordially greeted by Chancellor von Caprivi. The emperors, escorted by a guard of honor, drove to the castle, Count Kalnoky and Chancellor von Caprivi following. Deputations from veteran and other associations lined the route, and great enthusiasm prevailed.

Labor Troubles in New South Wales.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., September 17.—Employers are willing to consent to a conference if assurred that the men will abide by the decision. Several strikers, guilty of molesting workmen, have been fined and imprisoned. Troops are confined to their barracks, the authorities fearing that disorders will arise on the expiration of the truce, when the labor leaders declare that 100,000 men will respond to the call for a strike.

Communication Restored.

LA LIBERTAD, via Galveston, September 17.—Telegraphic communication with Guatemala and Honduras has been restored via the Central and South American Telegraph Company's cables. The governments are now adjusting telegraph accounts, and it is expected that after tomorrow messages will be accepted and forwarded without delay.

The Revolution in Switzerland.

BERNE, September 17.—The people of Respini, Locarno and Porticcio have enthusiastically determined to reinstate the government. Trouble is expected. It is reported that a fight has occurred between the infantry and people at Mendrisio, and that a soldier was killed.

Buenos Ayres' Cabinet.

BUENOS AYRES, September 17.—The following cabinet appointees are announced: Minister of finance, Senator Cane; minister of the interior, Senor Penaco; minister of public works, Senor Huego. Dr. Placa is about to start for London to arrange a loan to pay off the public indebtedness coming due.

The King Accepted Them.

LISBON, September 17.—The king has accepted the resignation of the whole cabinet. He will confer tomorrow with the guests of the chambers and leading statesmen. It is expected Senhon Zerpa Pimental will remain premier and will assume the foreign portfolio.

The Elections in Brazil.

RIO JANEIRO, September 17.—Official announcement is made that elections are finished and that the majority secured by the government proves conclusively that the people are in favor of the maintenance of republican institutions.

The Cholera in Massowah.

ROME, September 17.—A sanitary commission has started for Massowah, where deaths from cholera average fifty daily. Europeans are affected. Strict measures for the isolation of natives have been adopted.

The Taurus Safe in Port.

CONSTANTINOPLE, September 17.—The Austrian war ship Taurus which was reported to have foundered in the Black sea yesterday, arrived here today. Her boilers are damaged.

COUNTING A QUORUM.

SPEAKER REED COUNTING MEMBERS WHO WERE NOT PRESENT.

THE VENABLE-LANGSTON CASE

Gives Rise to a Lively Case of Filibustery—The Ohio Democrats Confident—The Direct Tax Bill.

WASHINGTON, September 17.—[Special.]—Speaker Reed gave it out last night that he would never sign the river and harbor bill, which had passed both houses, and was laying on his table for his signature before going to the president, until the democrats allowed the house to take up the contested election case of Venable vs. Langston.

This had the effect of scaring the democrats, who were interested in the river and harbor bill, and when the election case was called up this morning, notwithstanding the fact that the democrats were ordered out by the leaders, the Texas members and a few others retained their seats, to be counted to make a quorum, in order that Reed would sign the river and harbor bill. Even with these men in their seats, however, there was not a quorum voting, and Reed was, for the time, in a quandary. However, an idea struck him, and before announcing the vote, he sent pages in the building to find out and report what democrats were in the building. The pages reported a dozen or more, who were hid outside. Reed counted them, announced a quorum present, and the contested case was laid before the house. The democrats, who remained in the house to do guard duty, objected, but it was of no use. Reed would not even listen to them.

Judge Crisp, who was down in the restaurant, was counted as present in the house, and the story goes that Major Barnes, who was out in the library, reading the "Rise and Fall of the Subtreasury Bill," was counted as two. Judge Culberson says a page saw a track in the statuary hall, and reported it to Reed, with the statement that it measured thirteen inches.

"That's Buck Kilgore," said Reed, and immediately he was counted as present. However, the contested case was taken up and debated the entire evening. The debate will go on until 2 o'clock tomorrow, when the previous question will be ordered. Then the democrats will walk out again, and this time will hide where they cannot be found, even by the pages.

The Texas man will go, too, for Reed signed the river and harbor bill this afternoon. However, the case is hopeless now, but it might be delayed by filibustering on the part of the democrats. Mr. Venable is certain to be unseated, and the negro Langston will be sworn in and draw about $8,000 of salary the first day. With this he will return to Virginia and make a canvass for election to the next house. Langston will make the second negro member of the house, and if Colonel Elliott, of South Carolina, is unseated, and the negro contestant, Miller, given the seat, there will be three negroes on the republican side.

THE OHIO DEMOCRATS.

The Ohio democrats here are not at all annoyed about the Boothman resolution to set aside the act of the legislature and have the congressional elections in the old district. They say it is impossible for the republicans to get a quorum of their own men here now, and without that the democrats can prevent its passage. Unless a quorum of republicans can be secured, the chances are Reed will not have the house consider it, however much he favors such action.

THE DIRECT TAX BILL.

A resolution was introduced in the house today, providing that the direct tax bill shall be taken up and considered by the house next week. This is the bill which was passed after such a long fight in the fiftieth congress, and which was vetoed by Mr. Cleveland the day before he retired from the white house. It refunds some $2,000,000 of land taxes collected from the states during the war. Georgia will, however, get only about $117,000 in the event of its passage. The bill is, however, considered unconstitutional by the best lawyers in the house, and the democrats will oppose it. It has already passed the senate this session.

THE KENNEDY SPEECH.

The house judiciary committee considered the Kennedy speech this morning, and prepared a report to the house striking out that part which reflects upon Senator Quay and the senate as a body. The resolution reported also states that the house condemns the speech as printed in the Record. Kennedy made a talk before the committee in which he argued that there was nothing unparliamentary in the speech, as no names were mentioned, and as nothing more had been said about the senate than had been said hundreds of times before on the floor of the house. The report of the committee will be taken up and acted upon by the house, as soon as the Venable-Langston contested election case is disposed of. It should come up tomorrow, but the chances are that it will be delayed until Friday. Then, however, Kennedy will have an opportunity to create the sensation, which he has prepared to spring when the resolution comes before the house formally for discussion. Kennedy says his speech then will be warmer for some parties than the original. However, that remains to be seen. Reed is coaching him, and the speaker is anxious to have Quay forced from the chairmanship of the national committee.

IN EXECUTIVE SESSION.

The senate was in executive session today, but on account of the absence of a quorum, Denning was not confirmed as postmaster at Augusta. The confirmation will probably be made tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Hemphill, of Atlanta, and Miss Bun, of Macon, are here on a pleasure trip.

Colonel L. T. Garrard, of Columbus, and Mr. J. H. Hall, of Macon, are also here.

E. W. B.

THE RAUM INVESTIGATION.

Fleming on the Witness Stand—What He Knows About the Scandal.

WASHINGTON, September 17.—The committee investigating the charges against Pension Commissioner Raum heard the last of the witnesses today and Chairman Morrill announced the case closed. George B. Fleming was the first and principal witness today. When he was called to the stand, both sides disclaimed having subpœnaed him, and there was a little hitch about his examination, but finally Mr. Cooper consented to examine him at the request of the committee. Fleming and Butler Fitch had been Mr. Cooper's original informants in the matter. Fleming had brought Fitch and Cooper together. The resolution of inquiry had been prepared. Witness had assured Cooper that the charges could be proved, but he had not mentioned Fitch's name. Witness had written the articles on the subject which appeared in The Indianopolis Sentinel, and had supplied the information about the matter to The St. Louis Republic. Six or seven good men besides Fitch had supplied the witness with the information about the refrigerator company. Four of them were pension office employes.

The commissioner sought to get their names, but Cooper and Lewis protested against the question, the former saying that the evident purpose was "to get even" with the employes.

The commissioner replied that he desired to bring these men before the committee. Mr. Cooper said that the men had said that Bradley Tanner was a stockholder and that was now proven.

The Purchase of Bonds.

WASHINGTON, September 17.—In reply to the circular of the treasury department of Saturday, September 13th, inviting proposals for the sale of $16,000,000 four per cent bonds at noon today, the treasury department received offers aggregating about $28,000,000, of which $16,883,800 were purchased at prices varying from $125 to $126¾, the bulk of them above $126.

A number of other offers were made at prices below the highest price paid, but they were rejected because they were received after noon.

Secretary Windom, at Williamstown, Mass., was in direct communication by wire with Acting Secretary Batcheller and Assistant Secretary Nettleton while the offers were being received and acted on.

An official of the treasury department this afternoon called attention to the fact that, (including the purchase of bonds today) the disbursements by the treasury in thirty-two days had exceeded the receipts by $65,000,000.

The Bill Has Been Signed.

WASHINGTON, September 17—The Speaker has at last signed the river and harbor bill appropriation and announcement will be made to the house at the first opportunity. The next step in order will be to secure the signature of the presiding officer of the senate, and the bill will then go to the president for approval.

A WARM GREETING AWAITS HIM

Charles Manly Busbee Elected Grand Sire of the Odd Fellows.

RALEIGH, N. C., September 17.—[Special.]—Telegrams were received here today announcing the election of Charles Manly Busbee, of Raleigh, as grand sire of the sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows, which gave great satisfaction to the members of the order. Mr. Busbee is of a distinguished family. He was born in Raleigh in 1848. He is a son of Perrin Busbee, a leading lawyer of this city, who died young, and a grandson of Attorney General James F. Taylor. When only seventeen years of age he enlisted in the confederate army and after capture by the federal troops was imprisoned at Fort Delaware. He was also imprisoned at Morris island, near Charleston. He was after the war register of deeds of this county, and later began the practice of law, in which he has been very successful. He served in both branches of the legislature, and was one of the democratic leaders in each branch. He is a man of fine presence and graceful address, and has singular fluency and force as a speaker. For twenty years he has been a leading Odd Fellow here, and has served as grandmaster of that order in the state. Two years ago he was at Los Angeles, Cal., elected deputy grand sire, and his further promotion was expected. He will return to Raleigh in a fortnight, and on the 30th instant a banquet will be tendered him by the Odd Fellows and citizens generally. It will be the handsomest reception given here since that to General Lafayette in 1825.

TEN MINUTES' COURTSHIP.

A Wealthy Widower Makes a Girl's Jesting Offer in Earnest.

SOMER'S POINT, September 17.—One of the shortest courtships and marriages on record in this county occurred here yesterday afternoon. Miss Annie Risley, of Atlantic City, a young, rosy-cheeked, vivacious blonde, aged twenty-seven, was invited here to a dinner party by Mrs. George Anderson. After her arrival at noon, and before dinner, her hostess and herself called upon Mr. Amos Lewis, a wealthy widower, aged fifty-eight.

The young lady and Lewis, apparently mutually pleased, entered into conversation, he shortly stating that he greatly desired the services of a housekeeper. She inquired, laughingly, "Wouldn't I do?" He replied, "Well, rather, but not without accepting the more exalted position as my wife," immediately pressing his suit and urging an answer. A few moments sufficed. The lady's reply was an acceptance within ten minutes of their meeting. At his urgent request the marriage was solemnized by Rev. Chambers, three hours thereafter. The happy couple enjoyed, with a few friends, a supper at Mrs. Anderson's. The occurrence has caused considerable interest.

A WARM RECEPTION.

A Shotgun Instead of a Blessing from the Old Man.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., September 17.—[Special.]—A few days ago, a young man at Lockhart eloped with Miss Jennie Chamberlain, the pretty daughter of a prominent merchant of this place, and married her against her father's wish. Today, Way and his wife returned to get a valise, but the father stood guard with a shotgun. Seeing the gun, Way opened fire upon his father-in-law with a revolver, firing six shots at him, one shot inflicting a slight wound. The father-in-law promptly returned the token of parental affection with a volley from his gun, followed by another until both parties had exhausted their supply of ammunition. Neither of them were badly hurt. Both were arrested and placed under heavy bonds.

WIFE AND WIDOW IN TWO WEEKS.

A Former Belle of St. Louis About to Join a Religious Order.

ST. LOUIS, September 17.—Mrs. Mary Smith, the daughter of Mr. Lambert Walter, a wealthy St. Louisan, until a year ago was one of the leaders of society in this city. She is now on a term of probation in the religious order of the sisters of St. Francis at Oldenberg, Ind., and will take the veil on the 4th of next month. A year ago she was married to Charles Smith, a young man who was already then within the shadow of death, being ill of an incurable disease. The marriage was solemnized at the home of the groom, who was confined to his bed. Two weeks after Miss Walter was made a wife she was a widow.

She decided to enter seclusion, and eight months later became a novice for the habit which she will soon be invested with. She is twenty-three years of age, and a brunette of much beauty and talent.

HE WANTS HIS CHILD.

Richard H. Ivy Sues Out a Writ of Habeas Corpus.

RICHMOND, Va., September 17.—[Special.]—Richard H. Ivy, a young clerk in the Southern express office here, sued out a writ of habeas corpus this afternoon against his wife, who has been separated from him for two years. The object of the proceeding, which was brought before Judge Wellford, is to recover the custody of their only child, a boy about three and a half years old. Mrs. Ivy, who is quite young, and represented as a very attractive lady, is a daughter of a reputable contractor, and has lived with her father since she left the home of her husband. Ivy charges desertion, and counsel for the lady, who is herself out of the city, alleges that she was ordered from his home. Ivy sued for a divorce some time ago, which the late Judge Fitzhugh declined to grant.

Struck by a Train and Killed.

LANCASTER, Pa., September 17.—This afternoon a young man attempted to board an eastbound freight train, on the Pennsylvania railroad, near Conestoga bridge. A fast line was coming along on the other track and whistled for him to get out of the way, but he became confused and stepped in front of the engine and was struck by it. Both legs were broken and his skull crushed. He was instantly killed. A card in his pocket bore the name of Anthony Ryan, Savannah, Ga.

DECEITFUL MORMONS.

THEY PRETEND TO CONFORM TO THE LAW.

BUT STILL CARRY OUT THEIR FAITH

Report of the Commission Which Shows That the Disfranchised Polygamists Are Given Church Offices.

SALT LAKE CITY, September 17.—The Utah commission has forwarded to the secretary of the interior a lengthy report of its operations and proceedings for the year ending September 1st, 1890. The principal feature of the report is a recommendation of future legislation in support of existing laws. After reviewing the elections held in Utah since their last report, the commissioners say: During the year there have been frequent expressions of hope that the church would, in some authoritative and explicit manner, declare in favor of the abandonment of polygamy, or a plural marriage, as one of the saving doctrines or the teachings of the church, but no such declaration has been made. There is little reason for doubting. So complete is the control of the church over its people that if such declaration were made by those in authority it would be accepted and followed by a large majority of the membership of the so-called "Mormon church," and a settlement of the much discussed "Mormon question" would soon be reached.

On the contrary, in all teachings in the tabernacle and church organs, every effort of the government to suppress this crime is still denominated as persecution, and those charged with ferreting out and prosecuting the guilty are denominated as persecutors of the saints. The church seems to grow more united from day to day under these teachings. At a general conference of the church, held at Salt Lake City in April last, Wilford Woodruff, a disfranchised polygamist, was chosen "prophet, seer, and revelator and president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in all the World"--the first time since the death of John Taylor, in 1887, that that office has been filled.

At the same time George Q. Cannon was chosen as "first counsellor in the first presidency," and Lorenzo Snow as "president of the twelve apostles," all of them being disfranchised polygamists. The "council of the twelve apostles" was completed by filling all vacancies. A large portion of the twelve apostles and high dignitaries of the church are polygamists, and all are reputed to be open believers in the doctrine. Indeed, it is believed that no one can be promoted to office in the church unless he professes belief in it as a fundamental doctrine.

It is the opinion of the committee that nothing but the wholesome fear of the penalties of the law leads them to even make a pretense of obedience to it, and then there has never been any change in the gospel ordinances.

In conclusion, the commission repeats what it said in its last report—that in this matter government and congress should take no backward or even wavering step, but should continue the active and vigorous enforcement of laws, and improvement of them by the amendment of such as would make them more effective, and by enacting such other laws as experience may show to be wise and more efficacious to accomplish the desired end.

A SENSATION IN COURT.

The Solicitor Asks for the Discharge of the Jury.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., September 17.—[Special.]—There was a sensation in the criminal court today, caused by the discharge of the entire venire of jurors empaneled for the week. Yesterday, Charles Sample, colored, was tried for the murder of A. C. Walker. Seven witnesses testified that Sample shot Walker five times while the latter was asleep, and the defense offered no testimony, except Sample's himself, who stated that Walker tried to draw a pistol on him. On this evidence the jury returned a verdict of not guilty, greatly to the surprise of even the defendant himself.

When court met this morning, Solicitor Hawkins arose and stated that several important capital cases were set for trial this week, and after the verdict of yesterday he did not care to trust the present jurors, and asked that they be all discharged.

Judge Greene granted the motion, and discharged all the jurors. The discharged jurors held a meeting and issued a card, stating that the state did not prove by a physician that the bullet wounds caused Walker's death. They say they had a doubt of Sample's guilt, and gave him the benefit of it.

DEED OF A DEMON.

A Woman Assaulted and Murdered—Pursuing the Fiend.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., September 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. James Whitly, wife of a highly respected and prominent farmer living north of here, was brutally outraged and murdered three miles from this city yesterday morning. During the absence of her husband, who is a road overseer, and was repairing a bridge, she went to a cotton patch alone, and she must have been there an hour when assaulted and murdered with a flint rock, which was used to crush her skull. There were evidences of a terrible struggle, the cotton plants being broken and mashed down and the ground torn up over an area of over 100 square feet. Her husband, returning home, missed his wife and went to look for her, and discovered her lifeless form about 2 o'clock. Officers were soon scouring the neighborhood, and all night last night were busy searching the cabins of the plantations adjoining the Whitly farm. This morning they arrested a mulatto suspected of knowing who committed the crime and lodged him in jail to await further developments. If the guilty wretch is caught he will be lynched.

A MOVING TRAIN FIRED ON,

And a Traveling Man Comes Near Meeting His End.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., September 17.—[Special.]—The incoming passenger train from Macon on the Georgia Central was fired into by some miscreant near Fitzpatrick's station, about fifteen miles south of Montgomery, last night. The ball passed through the window of the passenger coach, breaking the glass and passing near the face of R. W. Ledsinger, a traveling man of Columbus, Ga., who felt the force of the breeze. Particles of glass were afterwards picked out of his ear by the other passengers.

HE KILLED HIS DAUGHTER

And Shot a Neighbor For Interfering With the Tragedy.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., September 17.—Fred H. J. Hein, aged forty-five, a cooper, had a family of three daughters, the eldest, Carrie, aged fifteen, keeping house for him. Several months ago his wife left him, and it is reported that she had been unfaithful, and reported the girl Carrie as wayward. Hein's troubles preyed on his mind until he resolved to end them, and to not only remove the partial cause of his misfortune, but also, from temptation, the three female members of his household. So about 7:30 o'clock tonight he shot and killed two of his daughters, shot three times and probably fatally wounded his third daughter; fired two shots into the back of Charles W. Taylor, a hardware merchant, just as the latter was entering his residence—some distance from Hein's—and then shot and killed himself. Taylor is still alive, but is very low. He stated he does not know what prompted Hein to shoot him.

FOR STEALING A MELON.

A Negro Is Shot and Killed by a White Man.

ELBERTON, Ga., September 17.—[Special.]—A negro man named Hannibal Allen, working on the Georgia, Carolina and Northern railroad, was shot and killed today by Mr. A. G. Webb, near Elberton.

The difficulty grew out of the negro taking a melon from Webb's field. The coroner returned a verdict of voluntary manslaughter. Webb has not been arrested.

Incendiarism in Harrisonburg.

HARRISONBURG, Va., September 17.—Early this morning the handsome residence of J. M. Kent was fired in several places and burned to the ground. Mr. Kent's former home was burned in March last, and other fires, evidently the work of incendiaries, have caused alarm. There is talk of forming a vigilance committee.

Hopson Has Been Caught.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., September 17.—[Special.]—Will May, alias Will Hopson, colored, was arrested here today for the murder of E. W. Hargis, white, at Kingston, Ga., in August, 1889. The prisoner confessed the crime, and will return without a requisition.

ONE MAN KILLED

And Another Seriously Hurt by a Boiler Explosion.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., September 17.—[Special.]—A deplorable accident occurred at the ginhouse and sawmill of Mr. Hugh Boyce, at Sardis church, in Sharon township, this morning. The boiler exploded and Will Boyce, a son of Mr. Hugh Boyce, was instantly killed. Three men were badly hurt, and the engine house was shattered to atoms. It was a terrific explosion. The rent in the boiler was made just over the firebox, in front of the dome. The boiler shot from its base like a rocket, went about thirty feet in the air and struck the ground seventy-five feet distant. The dome went in an opposite direction, its flight covering about the same distance. The engine house was completely torn away, scarcely one timber being left upon another. The unfortunate young man who was attending the engine was blown twenty feet. All his clothing was torn off by the force of the explosion and both his legs were badly broken. There was a gaping wound in his side made by a piece of flying metal, and all about his head and body were wounds and scalds. He was picked up dead. His death must have been instantaneous. Of the other men in the vicinity at the time, Mr. Dock Alexander was badly scalded, and Dick Harris and Lew Bowden were painfully hurt by flying timbers. That either one of them escaped being killed is considered miraculous.

News of the accident was first brought to the city by Mr. Kelly Reid. The cause of the explosion is not definitely known, but it is believed to have been due to some defect in the boiler, which had been in long service. Mr. Will Boyce and his father were in the city his twenty-first year, and was a most promising young man, well known throughout the city and county.

THE RAIL BROKE.

And a Very Bad Wreck Was the Result. Fifteen Passengers Injured.

NEW ORLEANS, September 17.—A Times-Democrat's Arkansas City special says: A bad wreck occurred on the Warren branch of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern railroad, five miles west of Collins, today. It occurred to an east-bound train, consisting of several freight cars, baggage and mail car, and one passenger coach, about forty-five passengers being aboard. The engine in passing an overa weak rail broke it. The freight cars passed over without displacing the rail, but the baggage car and passenger coach jumped the track, rolled down an embankment and were badly wrecked. Fifteen of the passengers sustained injuries more or less serious, but nobody was killed and none of the wounded are likely to die.

THE ALLIANCES TO MEET

To Consider the Proposition of the Foreign Bondholders.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., September 17.—[Special.]—Rev. S. M. Adams, president of the Farmers' Alliance, was in the city yesterday, and in the afternoon had a long conference with prominent alliance leaders at the alliance exchange. It is understood that the purpose of the conference was to discuss the proposition of foreign capitalists to advance $32 per bale on 2,000,000 bales of the present crop, and to call a meeting at once of the different alliances to be held in this city, to take immediate and definite action with reference to negotiations now pending. The call for such a meeting will appear in this week's issue of The Alliance Herald. President Adams is heartily in favor of the proposition of the foreign capitalists, and predicts it would result in a great revolution in the south.

"Give us the privilege of holding our cotton one year, with the right to sell at any time during that period, and we would ask nothing more," one of the gentlemen present is quoted as saying.

Continuing, he declared that cotton ought to bring 12 cents, and would if this arrangement could be properly consummated. It is expected that the proposed meeting of the alliance leaders in this city will be largely attended by members from this and adjoining states, Georgia, Tennessee, Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana.

THE SUFFERING CHINESE.

Millions Rendered Homeless by the Floods. The Cholera.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 17.—The steamer City of Rio Janeiro arrived this morning from Hong-Kong and Yokohoma via Victoria, B. C. She brings Chinese advices to August 21st, and Japanese advices to August 29th. The Yellow river flood and other floods continue to absorb attention in China. In the province of Chihili 4,000,000 people are homeless, and the misery in Shantung is almost as great. Cholera prevails in Shanghai and also in the northern districts.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., September 17.—[Special.]—The first issue of The Spartanburg Daily Herald appeared today. Its editors are Messrs. W. M. Jones and J. C. Garlington. THE UNIVERSITY.

THE EXERCISES OPENED ON YESTERDAY.

A Larger Number of Students Than Ever Appear for Enrollment—Chancellor Boggs Confident of Success.

ATHENS, Ga., September 17.—[Special.]—The University of Georgia opened its doors this morning, and all indications point to a very successful year for the institution.

There are now on the grounds in the neighborhood of 150 men, and more are rolling in with every train.

The familiar tones of the chapel bell announced this morning that college had opened, and there was noticed in attendance upon prayers a larger crowd of students than has ever been here before on opening day. The faculty is increased by the addition of Professor W. D. Hooper, of Columbus, and Professor Charles H. Herty, of Milledgeville. Professor Hooper is adjunct professor of ancient languages, while Professor Herty teaches analytical chemistry.

Chancellor Boggs, when interviewed, stated that he deemed the university on high ground, that its outlook was very bright, and that the class of new men who had entered was of a very high grade. He could not state positively as to the number in attendance, as the examinations had not all been passed upon, but he stated that he was confident that the university would admit to membership no person who was not fully prepared, and that she would turn out no person who was not a well-equipped man from a university standpoint.

The examinations are of a very searching nature, and show what a man really knows. The classes will regularly organize tomorrow, and the work of the year will begin.

Atlanta has an exceedingly bright delegation at the university, and they will doubtless take high rank as students.

THE FALL SESSION

Of the Southern Conservatory of Music to Open on Monday.

ROME, Ga., September 17.—[Special.]—The Southern Conservatory of Music will begin its fall term next Monday in the spacious buildings just completed. The conservatory is one of the best musical institutions south of Cincinnati, and is the pride of Rome. The new buildings were built by the lovers of music in Rome and Paul J. Fortin is in charge of the institution.

The buildings are splendidly arranged with several classrooms and a concert hall.

The musical directors are thoroughly finished musicians with diplomas from the Leipsic school.

There are no less than half a hundred of promising violin performers, and of various other instruments, among the young people of Rome. Any fair evening you can see the little fellows in droves, scarcely larger than their fiddles, going to their lessons.

Young ladies in voice culture are trained by an artist Professor Fortin has brought over from Europe.

Accomplished married ladies have also attended, and it is the most popular institution of Rome.

Mr. Fortin is building up the institution on the plan adopted by the large conservatories of the north, and his lessons in harmony and theory are very similar to them. The number of pupils is large, and from several states scholars have come. The opening of the Southern Conservatory of Music in its new buildings will mark a new era of musical culture in Rome.

EMORY COLLEGE OPENS.

A Successful Outlook for the Scholastic Year.

OXFORD, Ga., September 17.—[Special.]—Emory college opened this morning with most flattering prospects. The number of new students will reach near 100, representing every southern state. About 150 old boys are in, and near fifty more are to return this week, making a total of about 300 students.

The college is prepared to do good and efficient work this year. The faculty has been increased in the person of Professor H. S. Bradley, Jr., class 1890, who will occupy the chair of adjunct professor of science.

President Warren A. Candler, who has been quite feeble during the latter part of the summer, is fast regaining his aggressive spirits, and, while he is not yet able to fully attend to his work, his inspiring presence will be an invigorating influence felt by all.

To Open School at Inman.

LAGRANGE, Ga., September 17.—[Special.]—Professor H. W. Wooding will open a school in November at Inman, Ga. He has made a fine record as principal of the Hogansville school, and his friends regret to have him go so far away.

THE WORTH COUNTY FAIR.

The Farmers to Make an Exhibit of What They Have Done.

POULAN, Ga., September 17.—[Special.]—The Worth county agricultural fair will be held at Poulan Tuesday and Wednesday, October 14th and 15th, 1890. Arrangements have been made for premiums aggregating $400 in cash, and about twenty-five diplomas, to be distributed in the following departments: Live stock, field crops, orchard and garden products, domestic industry, ladies' handiwork and children's work.

Attention is called to this fair, not for the amount of money to be made from the premiums paid upon exhibits, but that people may become interested in improving the farms and stock raised upon them. By such fairs the people are brought together, are enabled to talk over the different methods of work, examine the different varieties of vegetables, fruits, live stock and farming utensils, and obtain assistance they could not otherwise get.

The railroads have been requested to lend their aid by making reduced rates for transportation of passengers and articles for exhibition, which they have arranged to do, and reduced rates will be made and special trains run expressly for the fair.

THE PRIMARY IN BROOKS

Results in the Selection of Mr. W. S. Humphreys.

QUITMAN, Ga., September 17.—[Special.]—The primary election to nominate a representative for Brooks county was held today. So far as heard from the election passed off quietly. Hon. W. S. Humphreys and Captain John G. McCall were the candidates. McCall's majority at this precinct is forty-five. The precincts heard from give Humphreys a majority of one, with his home district yet to be heard from, which will probably make his majority in the county 100. This will insure his return to the legislature.

It Always Carries the News.

VILLA RICA, Ga., September 17.—[Special.] Yesterday Mr. M. C. Turner was in town and purchased some goods for his mother. The merchant of whom he bought the goods wrapped them up in Sunday's CONSTITUTION. Aunt Turner reads a great deal, and she saved THE CONSTITUTION, and learned from it that her only brother, George Stevens, of Atlanta, had died the Saturday before, and THE CONSTITUTION was the first to bear the news to her.

JOE COBURN.

The Celebrated Prize Fighter Is On a Visit to Columbus.

COLUMBUS, Ga., September 17.—[Special.]—Ten years ago one of the most widely known of the American pugilists was Joe Coburn. His name was on everybody's lips and he engaged in some of the fiercest fights of a decade ago. He was as well known in America then as John L. Sullivan is now.

Mr. Coburn is spending a day or two in Columbus. He is a large, fine-looking fellow, a magnificent specimen of physical manhood.

Years ago he left the prize ring and is now living a very quiet life at Meridian, Miss.

It is probable that while here Mr. Coburn will arrange to be in Columbus during the entire time of the Chattahoochee Valley exposition.

THE CLERKS AND SHERIFFS

Have a Good Time at Their Meeting in Brunswick.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., September 17.—[Special.]—The clerks of the superior, and sheriffs of the different counties of the state, are in convention here. They met at the courthouse this morning at 10 o'clock, and were called to order by the president of the association, Mr. James K. P. Carr, of Chatham. He introduced Judge Bolling Whitfield, who welcomed the delegates to Brunswick and her hospitalities in a ringing speech of fifteen minutes. At the conclusion of Judge Whitfield's address, the convention went into the election of officers for the ensuing year, which resulted as follows: President, James K. F. Carr; vice president, Jacob L. Beach; secretary, M. W. Wilson; assistant secretary, George B. Forbes. Fifty counties are represented, and a jollier set of men could not have assembled anywhere.

Glynn's officials are covering themselves with glory in entertaining their guests. This afternoon at 2 o'clock, the visitors, in charge of thirty citizens of Brunswick, boarded the steamer Egmont, and a pleasant excursion was given to St. Simon's, where one hour was spent in the surf. The party returned to Brunswick, and at this hour, 12 o'clock, are in the banquet hall at the Ocean hotel, enjoying one of the most sumptuous spreads ever put up at that old hotel. A very important session of the convention will be held tomorrow, at which much business of importance to the state at large will be transacted.

A CRAZY WOMAN

Found in the Woods Near Rome—Her Fantastic Apparel.

ROME, GA., September 17.—[Special.]—A wild woman was captured yesterday near Rome, down towards the crags and Block's Bluff. Her skirts came only to her knees, and her legs were painted with pokeberries in flaming colors. She wore a faded and tattered dress, and a little piece of hat covered her head.

Mr. Schroider, living out towards the exposition grounds, came in yesterday and informed the officers of her pitiable condition. When arrested she could give no account of herself, nor where she was from, or her name. How long she had been in the woods could not be found out. She was put in jail. She aroused the prisoners in jail at 3 o'clock this morning, and her wild carrying on made the night hideous for the prisoners.

The craze has struck this section in earnest, and nearly every person you meet has rocks in his pocket.

Marshallville's Laundry.

MARSHALLVILLE, Ga., September 17.—[Special.]—A laundry is becoming an absolute necessity to every community. The "sister in black" becomes offended at the least criticism of her slovenly efforts, miscalled "washin'" and drops the job without notice, or else doubles the price. The citizens have determined to protect themselves and have formed a co-operative laundry company, and are about ready to receive bids for machinery.

Dr. Miner Davis was called who placed a ligature above the wound and went to attend another urgent call. During his absence the negroes unfastened the bandages and Martin began bleeding to death. Dr. Bacon was summoned from Albany, and found the negro about to expire. He amputated the arm but fears he cannot survive the flow of blood.

Opening the Chattahoochee.

LAGRANGE, Ga., September 17.—[Special.] West Point is pushing her scheme of opening the Chattahoochee to Franklin, and her best citizens are sanguine of its success. THE OLDEST SWITCHWOMAN.

Mrs. Mary Carroll Has Served Forty Long Years at the Business.

MACON, Ga., September 17.—[Special.] For forty long years Mrs. Mary Carroll has been the switchwoman at the Central railroad junction in this city, where several different railroad tracks meet. During this time she has always been faithful and efficient. She has never been the cause of an accident. Her tracks have always been set right. Her duties have been responsible, but the road has never incurred a dollar of breakage, a moment of delay, or the injury of a person on her account. She is, perhaps, the oldest and only switchwoman in the United States. There are hundreds of people who will recall seeing her in the little switchhouse at the junction, one mile from town.

After so excellent a record and so many years of capital service, in sunshine and storm, in cold and heat, the Central road has placed her in a less irksome position. She has been made gatekeeper at the shop of the road in this city.

IT WAS LOADED.

An Empty Pistol Shoots a Young Man at Marshallville.

MARSHALLVILLE, Ga., September 17.—[Special.]—On Saturday night, as Messrs. Leonard Jones and Tom Massey were monkeying with a pistol, supposed to be unloaded, it went off in the hands of Massey, and shot Jones through the thigh, inflicting a painful, if not a dangerous wound. Verily it is the empty pistol that is to be dreaded.

SAVED BY LIGHTNING.

By W. M. Hobby.

I was talking with a very intelligent and truthful citizen not long since, who, in former years, passed through many eventful scenes. He was in a reminiscent mood, and I asked him to tell me what he considered the most startling adventure in his career. It was a dark night, and we were sitting on his piazza. A black cloud was coming rapidly up from the west, and just as I asked him the above question a bright flash of lightning lit up everything around.

Pointing towards the cloud, he said:

"The heavens have answered you. I never see an electric flash like that but I am reminded of an incident that is more vivid than all others in my memory; though, perhaps, you will not consider it very thrilling.

"It was on the night of July 1, 18—," he continued, "I remember it well, because it was my twenty-first birthday—that I was riding home from a visit to some lady friends, seven or eight miles away. It was a very dark night and was about midnight. A storm that had been gathering since dark began to break in all its summer fury just as I rode into the midst of a large pine forest that lined the road on either side. It was a lonely place, even in the day time; and as the large drops commenced to fall and occasional flashes of lightning revealed the somber depths of the wilderderness, it seemed like entering into the shades of some dark inferno.

"When about midway of the wood there came a large and bright flash that lit up the pines like a thousand electric lights. I could see ahead of me the serpentine road winding in and out among the trees, and—what almost raised the hat from my head—right by my side, and almost touching the horse that had involuntarily stopped, was one of the tallest and wickedest looking men I ever saw. It was but a second that we gazed at each other. Then all was darkness, thick and intolerable darkness. Neither spoke a word and neither moved. As for me I scarcely breathed. After a short interval, that seemed an age, there was another still brighter flash; and there we were like statues—looking hard and suspiciously at each other.

"In that brief moment his peculiar features and image were engraved indelibly on my mind. If I had studied his face for years I could not have known it better. He had bushy eyebrows, a straggly beard of dark color, and a very sneering and cynical look about his face. I had never seen a face like it before and I knew at the time that I would never forget it. It was a case of instantaneous photographing. Anxious to be away I spurred my horse and he started forward. But the big fellow was ahead of me, for he grasped the bit with a giant's strength and jerked the horse clear back on his haunches. It was a spirited animal and in this I knew lay my only hope of escape. Pushing the rowels deep into his sides he responded nobly, and with a mighty bound broke loose from the iron grip that held him. There was a sharp report, and a bullet went whizzing by my head; but it was too late. Being unarmed, I lost no time in leaving that dismal wood behind and hurrying homeward.

"For some weeks I thought of this strange adventure, and the man's face was very often before me, clear and distinct in every wicked feature. What his object was that night, I know not. Probably he was some tramp who was bent on robbery, or wanted the horse. Gradually, however, the vivid remembrance of the incident wore away, and I ceased to think of it.

* * * * * *

"In the fall of the following year," continued my friend, "I was over in the little town of R——, fifty miles from my home, on business. The superior court was in session, and the village was crowded with people from all parts of the county and even from other counties, who were there for the purpose of hearing a celebrated murder trial that was creating much excitement. Everybody was talking about it, and I heard all the particulars over and over again.

"Sometime during the summer of the year before, one of the most prominent men of the county, a merchant, had been murdered in his house in the village and then robbed. It was a long time before there was any clue to the murderer. It was thought by many to be a man—presumably a tramp—who had been seen loafing about the store a day or two before the terrible crime was committed. After a long search of over a year he was quite accidentally captured, and was now on trial for his life. The man had no friends, nobody knew him, and there was but one opinion in regard to him, and that was that he was guilty. A perfect network of evidence, I was told, had been woven around him, from which it would be impossible for him to escape. It was already proved that he had a quarrel with the merchant, who had ordered him to leave his premises, a day or two before the murder—and thus in committing the crime he might have been actuated by motives of revenge as well as plunder; the tracks found leading off from the window, where the assassin had effected an entrance, corresponded identically with the track made by the prisoner; the murdered man had in his possession at the time of his death a curiously made silver watch with the picture of a blacksmith at his anvil on the back, but which could never be found after that night—and a watch corresponding with this, picture and all, was found on the prisoner when captured; and thus, everybody agreed, the crime was unequivocally fastened upon him. Besides this, and which was considered the most condemning testimony, a prominent citizen of the town swore that two days before the murder he heard the prisoner, at the time he was driven off by the merchant, make some dark threats against the latter's life, and that he had warned his friend, the storekeeper, to be on his guard against "that vagabond."

"The prisoner had pleaded 'not guilty,' and a lawyer was appointed to defend him. The case was about to draw to a close, and with a young attorney friend of mine, I walked over to the courthouse to hear the speeches. We went up into the place set apart for lawyers, and I sat down near the judge's stand. The prisoner was making his statement. I hardly glanced at him, but, as a matter of more interest, commenced to survey the jury in whose hands lay his fate. The man had been talking, they said, in an unmoved, desperate sort of tone, and all that he did was to reiterate his innocence, for he had no evidence of any kind with which to establish it.

"But as my friend and I sat down he looked at us intently for an instant and then his whole aspect changed. His eyes flashed up joyously and his voice became clearer and louder, though it trembled so that he could hardly proceed.

"Gentlemen," he said, "God knows I am innocent of this crime, but there is only one man in the world who can prove me so—and there sits that man."

"And with his long, lank, index finger he pointed directly at me.

"You may well imagine," said my friend, "that this was a very dramatic turn for affairs to take and that for a moment I was embarrassed. Every eye was turned upon me.

"I looked at the fellow more closely, and then in an instant, like a bright flash of lightning, I recognized the cynical features that had been imprinted upon my mind that stormy night in July over a year before. There was no mistake; it was the same tall and wicked-looking man, it was the same sneering and merciless face.

"The rest is soon told. Inquiring into the date when the crime was committed, I found that it was on the night of July 1st of the previous year, about 12 o'clock. I went to the stand, and, being well known in the country, proved an undoubted alibi for the fellow, for it was impossible that he could have shot at me in the wood and have committed a murder fifty miles away in the same hour. The state's solicitor made a very eloquent speech of about two hours, trying to convict the man, but is was no use. The jury stayed out about fifty minutes, and then brought in a verdict of 'not guilty.'

"The tall fellow came to me and thanked me, in gruff but tremulous tones, for saving him from the gallows, and begged that I would forgive him for what he did that night. I told him that as far as I was concerned he might go in peace, and the last I ever saw of him he was leaving that town behind as fast as his long legs could carry him.

"Public sentiment was divided in the county as to the verdict, and I was severely censured by some for testifying so positively as to the identity of a man only seen once before, 'neath a flash of lightning. But I have never had a qualm of conscience on the subject. Some faces seen for an instant we know forever; and I am as sure as that I have related this to you, that the man who was tried for the murder of the merchant in the little town of R—— was the man who shot at me on the night of my twenty-first birthday."

FOR THE NOMINEE.

THE DEMOCRATS CAUCUS LAST NIGHT

For the Purpose of Starting the Campaign in the Thirty-Fifth District—Preliminary Work Arranged For.

The campaign in the thirty-fifth senatorial district was opened last night.

About 200 prominent democrats met in one of the halls of the old capitol, for the purpose of taking steps to secure the election of Hon. Will Venable, the regular nominee.

The meeting was purely preliminary, and was intended to set the machinery in motion. The gentlemen present were very enthusiastic, and all were agreed that independentism should not be permitted to triumph in the capital district of the state.

Hon. Fulton Colville was called to the chair, while Mr. Charles F. Rice was appointed secretary.

The nominee, Mr. Venable, made a happy speech, in which he declared that, as the standard-bearer chosen by the late convention, he desired above all things the success of the democratic party. If he had been defeated, he would have given a cordial support to his successful rival. As the nominee, however, he was in the hands of the democrats of the district. He would, if elected, look faithfully after the interests of every constituent in the three counties of Fulton, Clayton and Cobb.

Other speeches were made, and committees were appointed to arrange for a mass meeting of citizens.

All citizens are requested to attend a meeting at rooms 51 and 52, old capitol, at 8 o'clock tonight, to take further action.

The friends of Mr. Todd sent in the following notice last night:

DEMOCRATIC RALLY

Friday night at 7:30 o'clock in the basement of the courthouse of Fulton county. Hon. Robert Todd, the democratic nominee for senator from the thirty-fifth senatorial district, will be present. Their will be speeches by prominent Atlanta gentlemen in the interest of Mr. Todd's nomination.

TODD SUPPORTERS.

THE SPARTANS' SCHEME.

A Large Land Sale With a Sporting Tournament.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., September 17.—[Special.]—For the past eight or ten months the boom at this place has been steadily on the increase. A cotton factory and several other manufacturing enterprises have been organized and gone into active operation. Real estate has been on a steady rise all the while. A short time since there was organized a land company with a capital stock of $100,000, which proposed to purchase large tracts in and near the city for improvement. They have been operating extensively for the past month. The company's latest scheme is to have a grand land sale on the 24th, 25th and 26th of the present month. Over 200 lots are to be sold and extensive preparations are in progress for the entertainment and amusement of the large number of visitors from all parts of the country who are expected.

Among other attractions will be a pigeon-shooting contest and a checker tournament. The following gentlemen from Atlanta have been invited to participate in the former event: Messrs. W. A. Hemphill, Dr. Frank Holland, D. Morrison, E. R. Shropshire, Dr. W. A. Crenshaw and E. C. Peters. The committee in charge has already secured 300 live birds and more are coming in daily. Teams from Asheville, Savannah, Augusta, Waycross, Columbia, Newberry and Union, have already been heard from and others are corresponding with the committee. Over $100 will be added to the prizes each day.

The checker contest likewise, promises to be well represented. Messrs. A. J. Warren, Aleck Hall and James F. O'Neill, have been invited to represent Atlanta. Those in charge will be glad to hear from any persons desiring to participate in either contest.

A Successful Experiment.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., September 17.—The most important event in the industrial development of the south occurred here yesterday, by the successful casting of steel from southern material, by the basic process. The result clearly demonstrates that southern iron will make steel, and explodes the notion that southern iron contains too much phosphorus to be used for this purpose. The first cast of twenty-two tons was made in the presence of a large crowd, and was of superior soft low carbon steel, finely adapted for structural work. A second furnace will be put in operation in thirty days. The great importance of this event is the fact that it affords a market for the lowest grades of southern iron.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA REPUBLICANS

May Nominate Colonel Alexander C. Haskell for Governor.

COLUMBIA, S. C., September 17.—[Special.] The republican state convention was called to meet in the hall of representatives at noon today, but owing to a fight in the executive committee it was 8 o'clock tonight before the delegates began to assemble.

Colonel Ellery W. Brayton is, and has been for many years, state chairman of the party in South Carolina, and has been the moving spirit. When the offices here were being distributed under the present administration, Brayton's claims were not recognized.

THIS IS WHY HE IS SORE.

This has made him strongly anti-administration. He is a candidate for congress in the seventh district against Miller, the negro, who succeeds Elliott, a democrat. Brayton is opposed by every republican office holder in the state, who propose to show that he cannot control the party. Brayton wishes the endorsement of this convention. There are contesting delegations from many counties, and the executive committee is empowered to prepare a temporary roll. Here is where the fight comes in. If the Brayton men are seated he will overcome all opposition. Brayton was said to have a majority of three on the committee. A delegate openly declared this evening that one of these had been bought by an office holder from Charleston for $500, and another was holding off for a higher price.

MAY NOMINATE HASKELL.

The main point of interest so far brought ought is the declaration of several delegates to the convention that they proposed to nominate for governor Alexander C. Haskell, of Columbia, and run him against Tillman. Colonel Haskell is one of the most prominent and distinguished democrats in the state. He is exjudge of the state supreme court, and has been a leader in the fight made by the "straightouts" against Tillman.

Delegate Smith, of York, an intelligent negro, said to your correspondent that he would nominate Haskell on the floor of the convention hall. They feared two things, he said, one that Haskell would refuse to allow his name to be used, and that he would be made a target for abuse by the press. Smith declared himself to be a landowner and taxpayer, and to be deeply interested in the welfare of the state. He and his people were anxious to see the continuation of good government, and they had no faith in Mr. Tillman. If he were elected, after charging the government with being corrupt, it would be a practical endorsement of his charges and injure the state. He was a straightout republican and Haskell a straightout democrat, and his party had nothing to gain by Haskell's election beyond a sense of security and continuance of good government. They did not ask Colonel Haskell to accept the nomination. They simply wished him not to refuse it, and to let the people have a chance to be heard at the polls. It is believed by many that if renominated, Colonel Haskell will take the latter course.

QUALIFICATION OF VOTERS.

The Mississippi Constitutional Convention Votes on the Suffrage Clause Question.

JACKSON, Miss., September 17.—The suffrage question may be regarded as settled, as far as Mississippi is concerned. Voting was begun section by section today upon the report of the committee on elective franchise. The voting developed the fact that the convention stands almost two to one in favor of the committee's report, and its adoption by an emphatic majority is no longer a question of doubt. The Chrisman amendment providing for an educational or property qualification, was rejected by a vote of 77 to 30.

The proposition to empower the legislature to confer restricted suffrage upon women received a similar quietus.

Amendments were bowled over as fast as they were offered, and all of the following four sections of the report were adopted by overwhelming majorities:

Section 1. All decisions by the people should be by ballot.

Sec. 2. Every male inhabitant of this state, except idiotic and insane persons and Indians, not taxed, who is a citizen of the United States, twenty-one years old and upwards, who has resided in this state two years and one year in the election district in which he offers to vote, and who is duly registered, as provided in section 3 of this article and who has never been convicted of bribery, burglary or theft, arson, obtaining money or goods under false pretenses, shall be entitled to vote after six months' residence in the election district, if otherwise qualified.

Sec. 3. The legislature shall provide by law for the registration of all persons entitled to vote at any election, and all persons offering to register shall take the following oath or affirmation:

"I do solemnly swear, or affirm, that I am twenty-one years old, and that I will have resided in this state two years, and —— election district of —— county one year next preceding the ensuing election, (or if minister of gospel, two years' residence in state and six months in said election district) and am now in good faith resident in the same, and that I am not disqualified from voting by reason of having been convicted of any crime named in the constitution of this state as a disqualification to be an elector; that I will truly answer all questions propounded to me concerning my antecedents, as far as they relate to my right to vote, and also as to my residence before my citizenship in this district; that I will faithfully support the constitution of the United States and of the state of Mississippi, and will bear true faith and allegiance to the same."

Sec. 4. A uniform poll tax of $2 is hereby imposed on every male inhabitant in the state between the age of twenty-one and sixty years, except persons who are deaf and dumb, or blind.

When section 5 was reached the convention struck a snag. Amendment after amendment was made and a long debate followed. The section reads as follows:

On and after the 1st day of January, A. D., 1896, the following qualifications are added to the foregoing: Every qualified elector shall be able to read any section of the constitution of this state, or he shall be able to understand the same when read to him, or give a reasonable interpretation thereof. New registration shall be made before the next ensuing election after theze qualifications are established.

The convention adjourned at 6 o'clock p. m. without action on amendment.

A SPLIT IN THE PARTY.

A Row Among the Republicans of Colorado.

DENVER, Col., September 17.—The republican state convention met here this morning, at 10 o'clock, and elected Alexander Gullett, of Pueblo, temporary chairman, appointed a committee on credentials and took a recess till 2 o'clock. There is a bitter factional fight in the republican party of Colorado, one faction being termed "the gang" and the other "the gang-smashers." The former have control of the state and county offices, and are making a strong fight to continue in power, while the other faction is leaving no stone unturned to oust them. The fight is so bitter in Arapaha county that at the county convention held here Monday "the gang" bolted, held a convention of their own, and the result is that this county has a contested delegation before the state convention. The same state of affairs exists in several other counties. This will make the work of the committee on credentials very tedious and long. Temporary Chairman Gullett is in sympathy with "the gang," and no doubt that faction will control the convention. Both sides endorse Henry W. Teller for re-election to the United States senate.

Republicans of Massachusetts.

BOSTON, September 17.—[Special.]—The republican state convention met here today and nominated the following ticket: For governor, J. Q. A. Brackett; lieutenant governor, William H. Haile; treasurer, George A. Marden; secretary of state, William M. Olin, Boston; attorney general, Albert E. Pillsbury, Boston; auditor, J. H. Gould, Medfield.

Connecticut Republicans.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., September 17.—The republican state convention reconvened in Hyperion theatre, at 10 o'clock this morning, with the temporary chairman, Ex-Lieutenant Governor Cook, presiding, and with 1,500 people present. United States Senator Orville A. Platte, was made permanent chairman. Senator Platte addressed the delegates in a ringing speech. At one portion he referred in turn to Blaine, Reed and Harrison. Blaine's name created a perfect furore. Reed's name received tremendous cheers, and the mention of the president was liberally applauded. Nominations were next in order. Herbert E. Benton, of New Haven, placed the name of Samuel E. Merwin, of New Haven, before the convention, and prolonged applause followed his effort.

An informal ballot was taken and resulted: Merwin, 398; Bulkely, 51. The ballot was made formal, and Merwin was declared the nominee amid great applause. The ticket was then completed as follows: George Augustus Bowen, Woodstock, lieutenant governor; George P. McLean, Hartford, secretary of state; E. Stevens Henry, Rockville, treasurer and Lyman Scatlin, Bridgeport, comptroller

A NEGRO NOMINATED.

The Republicans of the Seventh Alabama at Work.

ANNISTON, Ala., September 17.—[Special.] The republican party of the seventh district is divided.

The 27th of August the regular convention met in this city, and unanimously decided to make no nomination for congress. This didn't suit the negro element of the party, so another convention was called to meet in this city today. It was called together by Bill Stevens, the notorious negro politician of this city.

Rev. Andrew Jackson Logan, the negro who ran for the legislature last summer, was nominated by acclamation. The Harrison administration was endorsed and the force bill denounced.

Republicans in Session.

RALEIGH, N. C., September 17.—[Special.]—The new republican state executive committee held its first meeting here. John B. Eaves, its chairman, presided. F. T. Walser, of Greensboro, was elected secretary. A resolution introduced by J. G. Mott was adopted, appointing a committee of three to see that every republican voter in the state had an opportunity, or in case there was a failure to register, to ascertain the cause of the failure and the name of the register.

Chattanooga's Poolroom License.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., September 17.—[Special.] — Considerable indignation has been aroused here on account of the city council's action last night placing a license on the gambling device of selling pools on horse races. The license is $1,000 per annum. The city council, by its committee, admitted that poolselling is a violation of the state laws, but stated that the county and state authorities have failed or refused to suppress gambling. The council, therefore, thinks the city should reap a benefit from the business. Sheriff Skillern declares he will not allow the poolrooms to open.

Its Excellent Qualities

Commend to public approval the California liquid fruit remedy Syrup of Figs. It is pleasing to the eye, and to the taste and by gently acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, it cleanses the system effectually, thereby promoting the health and comfort of all who use it.

Sleves that Filter the Blood.

This rough simile describes the kidneys pretty accurately, or rather indicates their function, which is to separate from the vital fluid, which passes through them, hurtful impurities. If their activity ceases, they are liable to diseases which prove fatal. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters gives their action the requisite impulse without irritating them. They also benefit by its invigorating effects upon the system at large. Malarial and nervous complaints, rheumatism and billiousnes are subjugated by the Bitters.

PANTS TO ORDER $3.00 TO $8.25

SUITS TO ORDER $13.25 TO $35.00

—The production of clothing for men appears at present in this country to be divided into three distinct trades—the ready-made—the regular merchant tailor—and what is known in the trade as the "Plymouth Rock" idea, so named from its originators, the famous Plymouth Rock Pants Company of Boston—that is the cutting of clothes to each individual's measures but made in such quantities as to reduce the price to ready-made basis. This is the latest and perhaps most popular plan, opening as it does to the masses the luxury of clothing cut to order at ready-made prices.——

FOR THE NOMINEE.

THE DEMOCRATS CAUCUS LAST NIGHT

For the Purpose of Starting the Campaign in the Thirty-Fifth District—Preliminary Work Arranged For.

The campaign in the thirty-fifth senatorial district was opened last night.

About 200 prominent democrats met in one of the halls of the old capitol, for the purpose of taking steps to secure the election of Hon. Will Venable, the regular nominee.

The meeting was purely preliminary, and was intended to set the machinery in motion. The gentlemen present were very enthusiastic, and all were agreed that independentism should not be permitted to triumph in the capital district of the state.

Hon. Fulton Colville was called to the chair, while Mr. Charles F. Rice was appointed secretary.

The nominee, Mr. Venable, made a happy speech, in which he declared that, as the standard-bearer chosen by the late convention, he desired above all things the success of the democratic party. If he had been defeated, he would have given a cordial support to his successful rival. As the nominee, however, he was in the hands of the democrats of the district. He would, if elected, look faithfully after the interests of every constituent in the three counties of Fulton, Clayton and Cobb.

Other speeches were made, and committees were appointed to arrange for a mass meeting of citizens.

All citizens are requested to attend a meeting at rooms 51 and 52, old capitol, at 8 o'clock tonight, to take further action.

The friends of Mr. Todd sent in the following notice last night:

DEMOCRATIC RALLY

Friday night at 7:30 o'clock in the basement of the courthouse of Fulton county. Hon. Robert Todd, the democratic nominee for senator from the thirty-fifth senatorial district, will be present. Their will be speeches by prominent Atlanta gentlemen in the interest of Mr. Todd's nomination.

TODD SUPPORTERS.

THE SPARTANS' SCHEME.

A Large Land Sale With a Sporting Tournament.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., September 17.—[Special.]—For the past eight or ten months the boom at this place has been steadily on the increase. A cotton factory and several other manufacturing enterprises have been organized and gone into active operation. Real estate has been on a steady rise all the while. A short time since there was organized a land company with a capital stock of $100,000, which proposed to purchase large tracts in and near the city for improvement. They have been operating extensively for the past month. The company's latest scheme is to have a grand land sale on the 24th, 25th and 26th of the present month. Over 200 lots are to be sold and extensive preparations are in progress for the entertainment and amusement of the large number of visitors from all parts of the country who are expected.

Among other attractions will be a pigeon-shooting contest and a checker tournament. The following gentlemen from Atlanta have been invited to participate in the former event: Messrs. W. A. Hemphill, Dr. Frank Holland, D. Morrison, E. R. Shropshire, Dr. W. A. Crenshaw and E. C. Peters. The committee in charge has already secured 300 live birds and more are coming in daily. Teams from Asheville, Savannah, Augusta, Waycross, Columbia, Newberry and Union, have already been heard from and others are corresponding with the committee. Over $100 will be added to the prizes each day.

The checker contest likewise, promises to be well represented. Messrs. A. J. Warren, Aleck Hall and James F. O'Neill, have been invited to represent Atlanta. Those in charge will be glad to hear from any persons desiring to participate in either contest.

A Successful Experiment.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., September 17.—The most important event in the industrial development of the south occurred here yesterday, by the successful casting of steel from southern material, by the basic process. The result clearly demonstrates that southern iron will make steel, and explodes the notion that southern iron contains too much phosphorus to be used for this purpose. The first cast of twenty-two tons was made in the presence of a large crowd, and was of superior soft low carbon steel, finely adapted for structural work. A second furnace will be put in operation in thirty days. The great importance of this event is the fact that it affords a market for the lowest grades of southern iron.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA REPUBLICANS

May Nominate Colonel Alexander C. Haskell for Governor.

COLUMBIA, S. C., September 17.—[Special.] The republican state convention was called to meet in the hall of representatives at noon today, but owing to a fight in the executive committee it was 8 o'clock tonight before the delegates began to assemble.

Colonel Ellery W. Brayton is, and has been for many years, state chairman of the party in South Carolina, and has been the moving spirit. When the offices here were being distributed under the present administration, Brayton's claims were not recognized.

THIS IS WHY HE IS SORE.

This has made him strongly anti-administration. He is a candidate for congress in the seventh district against Miller, the negro, who succeeds Elliott, a democrat. Brayton is opposed by every republican office holder in the state, who propose to show that he cannot control the party. Brayton wishes the endorsement of this convention. There are contesting delegations from many counties, and the executive committee is empowered to prepare a temporary roll. Here is where the fight comes in. If the Brayton men are seated he will overcome all opposition. Brayton was said to have a majority of three on the committee. A delegate openly declared this evening that one of these had been bought by an office holder from Charleston for $500, and another was holding off for a higher price.

MAY NOMINATE HASKELL.

The main point of interest so far brought ought is the declaration of several delegates to the convention that they proposed to nominate for governor Alexander C. Haskell, of Columbia, and run him against Tillman. Colonel Haskell is one of the most prominent and distinguished democrats in the state. He is ex-judge of the state supreme court, and has been a leader in the fight made by the "straight-outs" against Tillman.

Delegate Smith, of York, an intelligent negro, said to your correspondent that he would nominate Haskell on the floor of the convention hall. They feared two things, he said, one that Haskell would refuse to allow his name to be used, and that he would be made a target for abuse by the press. Smith declared himself to be a landowner and taxpayer, and to be deeply interested in the welfare of the state. He and his people were anxious to see the continuation of good government, and they had no faith in Mr. Tillman. If he were elected, after charging the government with being corrupt, it would be a practical endorsement of his charges and injure the state. He was a straight-out republican and Haskell a straightout democrat, and his party had nothing to gain by Haskell's election beyond a sense of security and continuance of good government. They did not ask Colonel Haskell to accept the nomination. They simply wished him not to refuse it, and to let the people have a chance to be heard at the polls. It is believed by many that if renominated, Colonel Haskell will take the latter course.

QUALIFICATION OF VOTERS.

The Mississippi Constitutional Convention Votes on the Suffrage Clause Question.

JACKSON, Miss., September 17.—The suffrage question may be regarded as settled, as far as Mississippi is concerned. Voting was begun section by section today upon the report of the committee on elective franchise. The voting developed the fact that the convention stands almost two to one in favor of the committee's report, and its adoption by an emphatic majority is no longer a question of doubt. The Chrisman amendment providing for an educational or property qualification, was rejected by a vote of 77 to 30.

The proposition to empower the legislature to confer restricted suffrage upon women received a similar quietus.

Amendments were bowled over as fast as they were offered, and all of the following four sections of the report were adopted by overwhelming majorities:

Section 1. All decisions by the people should be by ballot.

Sec. 2. Every male inhabitant of this state, except idiotic and insane persons and Indians, not taxed, who is a citizen of the United States, twenty-one years old and upwards, who has resided in this state two years and one year in the election district in which he offers to vote, and who is duly registered, as provided in section 3 of this article and who has never been convicted of bribery, burglary or theft, arson, obtaining money or goods under false pretenses, shall be entitled to vote after six months' residence in the election district, if otherwise qualified.

Sec. 3. The legislature shall provide by law for the registration of all persons entitled to vote at any election, and all persons offering to register shall take the following oath or affirmation:

"I do solemnly swear, or affirm, that I am twenty-one years old, and that I will have resided in this state two years, and —— election district of —— county one year next preceding the ensuing election, (or if minister of gospel, two years' residence in state and six months in said election district) and am now in good faith resident in the same, and that I am not disqualified from voting by reason of having been convicted of any crime named in the constitution of this state as a disqualification to be an elector; that I will truly answer all questions propounded to me concerning my antecedents, as far as they relate to my right to vote, and also as to my residence before my citizenship in this district; that I will faithfully support the constitution of the United States and of the state of Mississippi, and will bear true faith and allegiance to the same."

Sec. 4. A uniform poll tax of $2 is hereby imposed on every male inhabitant in the state between the age of twenty-one and sixty years, except persons who are deaf and dumb, or blind.

When section 5 was reached the convention struck a snag. Amendment after amendment was made and a long debate followed. The section reads as follows:

On and after the 1st day of January, A. D., 1896, the following qualifications are added to the foregoing: Every qualified elector shall be able to read any section of the constitution of this state, or he shall be able to understand the same when read to him, or give a reasonable interpretation thereof. New registration shall be made before the next ensuing election after these qualifications are established.

The convention adjourned at 6 o'clock p. m. without action on amendment.

A SPLIT IN THE PARTY.

A Row Among the Republicans of Colorado.

DENVER, Col., September 17.—The republican state convention met here this morning, at 10 o'clock, and elected Alexander Gullett, of Pueblo, temporary chairman, appointed a committee on credentials and took a recess till 2 o'clock. There is a bitter factional fight in the republican party of Colorado, one faction being termed "the gang" and the other "the gang-smashers." The former have control of the state and county offices, and are making a strong fight to continue in power, while the other faction is leaving no stone unturned to oust them. The fight is so bitter in Arapaha county that at the county convention held here Monday "the gang" bolted, held a convention of their own, and the result is that this county has a contested delegation before the state convention. The same state of affairs exists in several other counties. This will make the work of the committee on credentials very tedious and long. Temporary Chairman Gullett is in sympathy with "the gang," and no doubt that faction will control the convention. Both sides endorse Henry W. Teller for re-election to the United States senate.

Republicans of Massachusetts.

BOSTON, September 17.—[Special.]—The republican state convention met here today and nominated the following ticket: For governor, J. Q. A. Brackett; lieutenant governor, William H. Haile; treasurer, George A. Marden; secretary of state, William M. Olin, Boston; attorney general, Albert E. Pillsbury, Boston; auditor, J. H. Gould, Medfield.

Connecticut Republicans.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., September 17.—The republican state convention reconvened in Hyperion theatre, at 10 o'clock this morning, with the temporary chairman, Ex-Lieutenant Governor Cook, presiding, and with 1,500 people present. United States Senator Orville A. Platte, was made permanent chairman. Senator Platte addressed the delegates in a ringing speech. At one portion he referred in turn to Blaine, Reed and Harrison. Blaine's name created a perfect furore. Reed's name received tremendous cheers, and the mention of the president was liberally applauded. Nominations were next in order. Herbert E. Benton, of New Haven, placed the name of Samuel E. Merwin, of New Haven, before the convention, and prolonged applause followed his effort.

An informal ballot was taken and resulted: Merwin, 398; Bulkely, 51. The ballot was made formal, and Merwin was declared the nominee amid great applause. The ticket was then completed as follows: George Augustus Bowen, Woodstock, lieutenant governor; George P. McLean, Hartford, secretary of state; E. Stevens Henry, Rockville, treasurer and Lyman Scatlin, Bridgeport, co mptroller

A NEGRO NOMINATED.

The Republicans of the Seventh Alabama at Work.

ANNISTON, Ala., September 17.—[Special.] The republican party of the seventh district is divided.

The 27th of August the regular convention met in this city, and unanimously decided to make no nomination for congress. This didn't suit the negro element of the party, so another convention was called to meet in this city today. It was called together by Bill Stevens, the notorious negro politician of this city.

Rev. Andrew Jackson Logan, the negro who ran for the legislature last summer, was nominated by acclamation. The Harrison administration was endorsed and the force bill denounced.

Republicans in Session.

RALEIGH, N. C., September 17.—[Special.]—The new republican state executive committee held its first meeting here. John B. Eaves, its chairman, presided. F. T. Walser, of Greensboro, was elected secretary. A resolution introduced by J. G. Mott was adopted, appointing a committee of three to see that every republican voter in the state had an opportunity, or in case there was a failure to register, to ascertain the cause of the failure and the name of the register.

Chattanooga's Poolroom License.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., September 17.—[Special.] — Considerable indignation has been aroused here on account of the city council's action last night placing a license on the gambling device of selling pools on horse races. The license is $1,000 per annum. The city council, by its committee, admitted that poolselling is a violation of the state laws, but stated that the county and state authorities have failed or refused to suppress gambling. The council, therefore, thinks the city should reap a benefit from the business. Sheriff Skillern declares he will not allow the poolrooms to open.

Its Excellent Qualities

Commend to public approval the California liquid fruit remedy Syrup of Figs. It is pleasing to the eye, and to the taste and by gently acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, it cleanses the system effectually, thereby promoting the health and comfort of all who use it.

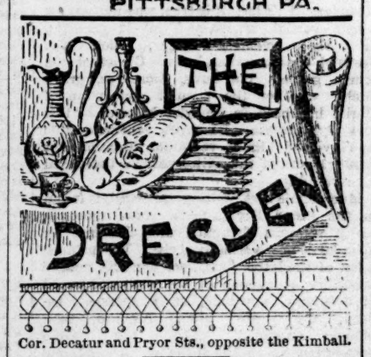

Sleeves that Filter the Blood.

This rough simile describes the kidneys pretty accurately, or rather indicates their function, which is to separate from the vital fluid, which passes through them, hurtful impurities. If their activity ceases, they are liable to diseases which prove fatal. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters gives their action the requisite impulse without irritating them. They also benefit by its invigorating effects upon the system at large. Malarial and nervous complaints, rheumatism and biliousnes are subjugated by the Bitters.

—The production of clothing for men appears at present in this country to be divided into three distinct trades—the ready-made—the regular merchant tailor—and what is known in the trade as the "Plymouth Rock" idea, so named from its originators, the famous Plymouth Rock Pants Company of Boston—that is the cutting of clothes to each individual's measures but made in such quantities as to reduce the price to ready-made basis. This is the latest and perhaps most popular plan, opening as it does to the masses the luxury of clothing cut to order at ready-made prices.——

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 18, 1890.

The One Thing Needful.

For the past two years there has been a better feeling in the country districts of Georgia, and, despite the shortness of the cotton crop this year, there is a noticeable brightening of faces and deepening of content all through the rural districts. Agriculture is on the up-grade, but there is still one thing needful—and that is better country schools.

A sojourn in the country will show that everywhere in Georgia there is a better feeling among the farmers, and this is the only remaining cause of serious discontent with country life per se. There is complaint about tariffs, freight rates or insufficient currency, but these evils are not confined to the country, and they are not influences that tend to make the farmer desert his farm for the town. The only remaining serious cause of dissatisfaction with country life is the lack of facilities for educating children in country communities. Once this sufficiency is supplied, the old-time love of the country will return. The greatest men that ever illustrated Georgia got the foundation of their education in excellent country schools and academies the that were numerous in the rural districts and smaller towns before the war. There is an improvement in the methods of teaching, and the path of the learner is easy now-a-days, but there are no manlier young men, no more womanly women going out of the public schools than went out of the country academies of the olden time, and, with the proper management, there can be a revival of country schools that will give as good facilities in the rural districts as in the towns.

[illegible] parents to send boys and girls in their early teens away from home in order to school them; but it often happens that an absolute lack of schools compels a parent to either move to town or send his boys and girls away. Rather than part with their children at an age when they need the wise counsel of a father and the tender care of a mother to save them from moral shipwreck, these parents will sacrifice their property and move to town. This ought not to be; and it must not continue if our agriculture is to prosper. Instead of this powerful influence drawing people away from the farms, there should be some influences like the old-time academy, with fresh air and health to keep them there. The country is the home of virtue and the backbone of a prosperous people.

A great deal has been said about state aid to education, and the legislature is slowly advancing on that line, but it will be a long time before every country community will get a good school from that source. In the meantime the people in the rural districts are restless. Their children cannot await the slow progress of legislation for an education. In a year or two these boys and girls will be in the world, looking after their own livelihood, and parents look to an immediate equipment of their children for the hard struggle of life. To meet the emergency here is a suggestion which is not altogether crude, for it has some foundation in experience. Why cannot the rural districts follow the example of the towns, and raise money to carry on schools by local taxation? It is far more independent than waiting on legislation, and the towns and cities have found it eminently satisfactory. Why cannot a militia district or a school district do the same? As in the towns, the amount raised by local taxation would be supplemented by the pro rata of the state fund, and the burden of taxation would be found much lighter than many would suppose. It would give a stable fund upon which teachers of high ability could be induced to give their services to the country districts. It would take legislation to carry out this plan, but it would be local legislation of a kind much easier to obtain than a general appropriation sufficient to accomplish the same results.

An Honest Admission.

We are glad to see the following statement in The Memphis Republican. It shows very clearly the present drift of the republican party. It should be stated that The Republican is indeed a republican in politics. It stands up for the party on all occasions. But as we have frequently pointed out, some of the best organs of that party have recently withdrawn their support from it. We submit the following clipping:

Republicans cannot afford to coddle with either mugwumps or bulldozing bourbon democrats. We are either right or we are wrong. If the latter, let us leave our party and join another.

There is no doubt implied in the above, which is emphasized by a special mailing of the paper to THE CONSTITUTION, in which the paragraph quoted appears in mourning. It is draped in black from beginning to end, and only shows that even the organs of the republican party have found it impossible to support it.

It is the trend of the times. A new era is dawning on this country, and the democratic party should hasten to take advantage of it.

Let the results in Maine inspire the party of honest government to renewed effort and watchfulness. When we find a man abusing his own family, it is high time to step in and inquire into the cause.

Banks of Local Issue.

Among American financiers and bankers there has been during the last quarter of a century a heated desire to arrange all our financial plans and money matters according to British theories. The effort of the schoolmen and pedagogues to make our English grammars conform to the Latin standard is a mere matter of moonshine, compared with the attempts of our financiers and professors of political economy to transplant British methods of finance to the United States.

It is a craze that passes comprehension, a proceeding ruinous in some directions, and not going far enough in others. In 1873 Great Britain, through a man named Linderman, and by employing other methods that did not appear on the surface, had no trouble in persuading our professional financiers to demonetize silver. They jumped at the bait and swallowed it without examination, and, through their influence, silver was demonetized without notice and without debate, and it still remains demonetized. The result is well known. By purchasing American silver at a heavy discount, and shipping it to India—where it is on a par with gold—Great Britain has been enabled to break down the market for American wheat and cotton. In other words, our financiers, for nearly twenty-five years, have lent their aid to a scheme by which our farmers are robbed for the benefit of Great Britain, and in this they have been aided by the republican party.

In another direction, however, our financiers ignore the practice of Great Britain altogether, and that is in opposing banks of local issue. This is singular, too, since banks of local issue are the very backbone of Great Britain's financial system. But in this country, as soon as the subject is broached there is a great cry of "wild-cat" banks, and we are told that state banks of issue would be dangerous and awkward. It seems to be useless to point to the fact that, so far as Georgia and South Carolina are concerned (to go no further), the real state banks of issue were as stable and as substantial as any institutions that have since been established; that their currency was sound; and that it was receivable in the cotton markets of Europe.

It seems to be useless, also, to point to the fact that the experience of the country has made it possible to establish local banks of issue on as substantial a foundation as that on which the national banks are based. The objections to such as cheme are just as plausible, just as sensible and just as tenable as the objections to the free coinage of silver. Above all, it has in favor of it the British precedent, which ought to render it sacred in the eyes of our professional financiers and political economists. As far back as 1872 the circulation of the English, Scotch and Irish banks, exclusive of the notes of the Bank of England, was $85,000,000. It is by means of this circulation that the local trade is carried on with such facility.

This subject is well worth serious discussion.

Editor Halstead as a Vindicator.

We believe that Editor Murat Halstead is having more trouble than any other journalist this country ever produced. He seems to be in the attitude of the stormy petrel which flaps between the whirling cyclone and the deep green sea. Like a bottle of store pickles, his responsibilities are so mixed that it is impossible, at this distance, to know whether he is chewing a lady's finger, pepper or a wrinkled gherkin.

Under the circumstances, it is natural that there should be a clamorous twang to his paragraphs and essays. Engaged, as he is, in imparting new life and vigor to country journalism in Brooklyn, he still has his hands on the throttle-valve of The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, and it is to be expected that he should sound the loud and frequent note of alarm.

Mr. Halstead has no sooner emerged from the noise and confusion of one difficulty than he finds himself plunged head foremost in another. In following the reckless leaders of his party, it is not to be expected that so exuberant and vigorous a sapper should come out of the wahoo bushes with all his clothes on and in good order.

We have long been of the opinion that if Mr. Halstead had remained in Ohio, J. B. Foraker would have been a greater man than he now is. The personal equation counts for a good deal in politics, and Mr. Halstead's vigorous belief that the forgery which deceived him was calculated to deceive the man that helped to concoct it, would have had great weight in Ohio, where unadorned earnestness counts for a great deal. But Mr. Halstead left Ohio and the result is that even the republican committee of investigation on the ballot-box investigation has refused to whitewash Foraker's connection with that job.

With respect to Quay, Mr. Halstead has been more successful. He has made no investigation, but he has gone about the vindication of that typical republican in a Johnny-get-your-gun style that is quite refreshing. He has accomplished more in this way than all the great republican editors put together. The manner in which he meets the charges against Quay is worthy of note. He proves the republican leader to be innocent by quoting a charge to the effect that the Hon. Calvin Brice bought his seat in the senate. It takes a wonderful accumulation of reasoning power to follow this logic, but no doubt there are a great many republicans equal to the task. We think, however, that Mr. Halstead's logic would be less faultless if he should declare that Quay's innocence is proven by the fact that Cain killed Abel, or that the whale swallowed Jonah, and afterwards used him for fertilizing a gourd vine.

In the face of this vindication, however, Kennedy, of Ohio, has just gone through the performance of hot-potting Quay in the house. It was an interesting display, but not at all pleasant to Mr. Halstead, who seems to be in the mood for wrapping the prickly tendrils of his wrath around the thick hide of the Ohio congressman.

There seems to be a hitch in the process of vindication, but it is probably not much of a hitch. If Mr. Halstead can charge Kennedy with something or other, then it must follow that Quay is innocent.

THE SALE of the Shenandoah Valley road will result in great good to Atlanta, if the Baltimore and Ohio company should become the purchaser. It would mean an extension south which would give Atlanta another railroad.

WE HAVE received quite a number of anonymous letters commending the letter of Judge J. K. Hines on the subtreasury bill. It is impossible for us to print these letters, but it seems that Judge Hines has struck a popular theme in some counties in this state. One of the writers insists that in view of the fact that our merchants and farmers are now suffering for the want of money to move the cotton crop, that he take the stump to stir up the boys on this burning issue of an "elastic currency and more money for those who need it."

THE PRINCE OF WALES has allowed his old trouble to overcome him again. The cause of temptation is a fair American whom he met at Homberg.

PRINCE GEORGE is the social lion of the day in Montreal. A few nights ago he went out on a lark with the boys, and an enterprising newspaper man gave the facts to the press. The vigilant reporter was at once put under heavy bond for slandering royalty.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

SOME OF Editor Shepard's esteemed contemporaries have found occasion recently to remind him of the celebrated remark of his distinguished father-in-law, that he is more kinds of a peculiar class of fool than any other man in the country.

EUGENE FIELD continues to write humorous poems from the "old country," to The Chicago News. It is very evident that the foam is on the beer in Editor Field's vicinity.

A GRAFTED peach tree at Napa, Cal., produced this year a crop of three varieties of peaches, excellent plums, as well as a crop of almonds.

THE CHICAGO INTER-OCEAN puts in a pitiful plea for Dr. Mary Walker. It says: "Dr. Mary Walker's petition to congress to have a national costumer for women may seem funny, but the joke is on the congressmen who talked about refusing her claim for services during the war simply because she does not dress as do other women. Dr. Mary Walker did excellent service in the hospitals during the war, and her claim is entitled to respect without regard to her style of dress.

JUST A FEW.

Clem Moore, of The Crawfordville Democrat, will not run as an independent; and yet, Clem is one of the most independent editors in the country.

Editor Hanlon says he sends us The Quitman Press regularly. He sometimes forgets, however, to put a special delivery stamp on the wrapper.

Behold! how pleasant a thing it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.

Editor Freeman, of The Waycross Headlight, is getting ready for one of his annual excursions. He gives his subscribers a free ticket, but collects subscriptions on the train.

The climax has been reached. A Georgia editor has paraphrased Pope as follows:

Teach me to feel another's woe,
To hide the cash I see;
That money I to others owe,
That money owe to me!

The Southwest Georgian is fast coming to the front as a good weekly newspaper. The [illegible] should sustain the editor in his efforts to build up the country.

AROUND THE STATE.

—Major Armstrong [illegible] here. He recently plunged in the water and saved the life of a little girl.

—Superior court will be in session in Rome next Monday. An interesting session is looked forward to.

—A Griffin negro has been killed while in the act of whipping his wife.

—The new Rome land company is doing a great work for Floyd county.

—Last year the cotton seed oil mills paid out for seed alone $13,762,450. This large sum was almost a clear gain to the farmers of the south.

—Augusta has a factory for the manufacture of bottles. The beer interest is looming up in that city.

—Carroll county will probably have a fair this fall.

—Here is a story from Lee county: "Last spring I planted a lot of English peas. One day the chickens got in the garden, scratched them up and ate them. I didn't have time just then, to send to town after more pea seed to plant, so I decided to cut the chicken's craws open, take the seed out and plant them. I did that; then I sewed up the craws, with a common needle and thread. I never saw a finer crop of English peas than I raised last spring, and I think those chickens were the best I ever tasted, for, be it known, the chickens lived and grew to be of good size."

—A test has just been made as to whether or not the way in which liquor is sold in the drug stores of Athens is legal or not. No fight was made as to the fact of selling, and the defendants took the stand that the way in which it was sold was in perfect accordance with the city laws. But the mayor doesn't think so, and has fined each of the druggists $200 and costs. The sufferers are Drs. R. F. Sorrells, W. J. Smith, E. R. Kinnebrew.

POLITICAL DRIFT.

—Mr. W. D. Wells, of Lee county, is making a strong race for the legislature.

—The following storming appeal appeared in The Rome Daily Herald of yesterday:

Rouse, ye farmers, rouse! Ye are slaves and have been for twenty-five years, and slaves for whom? For those who have been oppressing you from 1865 to the present day. Where would that class of people be were it not for the farmer? They are the backbone of the country, and should be treated as such. I include the colored farmer as well as the white.

—The Pike county Journal says:

Before the late primary election for representative, when votes were a matter of much concern to the candidates, Judge Barrett informed many of the admirers of Governor Gordon that he was a Gordon man. Now that the nomination is over, and the judge is one of our nominees, will he please define himself publicly on this important matter? As a newspaper run in the interest of the people of Pike county, The Journal feels called upon to make this inquiry. Let us have an answer from each candidate for representative to the above question.

—What is to be the outcome of this trouble in the eighth district? The Athens Banner says:

Will there nothing come out of Mr. E. G. Roane's fearful exposure? Will the democrats of the eighth district quietly submit to having this blight remain a fixture upon them? Will we let the finger of suspicion remain pointed at the best men and most loyal democrats in our district? Will we send to congress a representative nominated in a convention over which hangs the charge of bribery? Will our party consent to remain a target for the finger of scorn? Will Mr. George B. Lumpkin consent to let the grave charge made against his honor and integrity be a question of veracity between himself and Mr. Roane? Will Mr. E. G. Roane wear the brand of a slanderer, and make no effort to prove his assertions? Will Hon. F. H. Colley be content to let the facts go forth to the world that an attempt was made to buy his nomination in a convention without establishing his innocence in the transaction? Will the delegates to our congressional convention read with patience and forbearance this disgraceful scandal in their midst? Will Mr. J. T. Olive's delegates hear without protest the charge made that their ballots were bartered for money like a chattel, and not use an effort to vindicate their own honor, or that of their chairman? Will Chairman Shannon consent to let this stigma cling to the party over which he presides, without fixing the blame where it belongs? The Banner is urged to let this bribery scandal rest. This we do not propose to do. We hold the honor and purity of the democratic party of our district too near at heart to permit this disgraceful scandal to forever hover over it. In this investigation we know neither friends nor enemies. The good name of our party is in deadly peril, and day by day, and week after week, we propose to keep this matter before the people, until it is investigated and explained. Let blame be placed where it belongs, and the brand of corruption and infamy placed upon the brow of the man or men who have brought this disgrace upon us.

—The Augusta Chronicle says that the republicans in that section are using the negro to indorse some of the most vicious legislation of the republican congress. They are getting up petitions among them in Augusta favoring the force bill and endorsing for postmaster a man against whom the best element of the people has protested. They are trying to evive memories of reconstruction by bringing out leaders whose names and records are odious in the nostrils of decent men. They have endorsed the action of the republican congress, which has turned out a score of southern representatives duly elected by the people, to put in partisans of their own stripe.

—Walton News: Our senatorial convention will be he'd here next Saturday, the 19th, when Hon. J. E. Nunnally will receive the formal nomination to represent this district in the next state senate.

PARAGRAPHIC PENCILINGS.

Do we indeed live, as Carlyle long since wrote, in an age of shams? We might reply yes and no. While we have no sympathy with a cynical, carping criticism, yet it is well to call a spade a spade, rather than call it an agricultural implement. We put the case mildly when we deprecate the decadence of the old-fashioned virtues. We recognize with the utmost heartiness the admirable features of our nineteenth century civilization. The utilization of electricity is of itself one of the grandest of scientific achievements, although as yet we see but the faintest beginnings of its reserved force. We marvel at the development of the mineral industries—we rejoice in the wider diffusion of knowledge, nor less in the splendid growth of our public charities—in the railways that cover the continent with their network of steel, and what is yet more wonderful, in the palatial steamers that "weave the continents together," as they come and go with the punctuality of the planets. But there are two sides to this mystic shield. The aggregation of wealth in a few hands not less than the aggregation of population in a few centers is fast transforming the government into a plutocracy. The national senate, a body once composed of such illustrious worthies as honest Nat Macon, gallant Harry of the west, the sage of Pendleton, the imperial Webster, and others of only lesser note, is now a body of bloated bondholders, whose aggregate wealth exceeds that of some of the older states. Statesmanship has degenerated into partisanry. Society is but another name for snobbery. The church, which was ordained to be the salt of the earth, is, in many quarters, losing its godly savor. In places not a few it has become as worldly wise as the English church that knows to a farthing "the value of a pound sterling." If the half of this be true we need a national lustration. We need some Moses to lead us out of the wilderness; not Henry George's single tax theory, nor Dr. Macune's subtreasury plan, nor the educational project of that "Pan-American ass," Senator Blair. Let us "ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein," then will the darkness flee away and there will be "day-break everywhere."

We saw Henry Ward Beecher but once, and this while he was making a lecturing tour through the south. From a respectful distance we gazed on the great Brooklyn divine as a traveler might look up at Mont Blanc. We are not wanting in reverence for great men, but there are some, and Mr. Beecher was among the number, with whom we do not covet an intimate acquaintance. We prefer seeing and knowing them in perspective. Mr. Beecher (he scouted the doctorate) we have known quite thoroughly, however, through the medium of his contributions to theology and general literature. One of the best and earliest of these contributions was his [illegible] to young men. The style of these lectures is a trifle ornate, but they furnish most instructive reading for the class for whom they were specially designed. After his removal from Indianapolis, the place of his first pastorate, to Brooklyn he achieved a continental renown which he retained to the close of his long ministry. In his latter years he undertook a "Life of Christ," which added nothing to his well-earned reputation. Indeed Christology is a breaker on which many a theological pinnace has gone to pieces. Geikie, Farrar, Deems, and a dozen more of different degrees of excellence, have stranded or foundered in these tempestuous seas. Not a few of them deserve to be placed in the same category with the commentators of Shakespeare. Fleetwood, one of the oldest, is perhaps the best for the average student. If he wants more learning or philosophy, let him read Neander. This last, it is true, was written for a controversial purpose, and yet it presents, in the clearest light, not the Jesus of the synoptists, but the Christ of the fourth gospel. We have, moreover, grave doubts whether the popular conception of Christ has been in anywise bettered by this sort of literature. Beecher's venture on this line involved him in vexatious litigation that hardly less than the Tilton scandal beclouded his latter days.

Much of his best writing, after all, is found in the "Star Papers." In these there are many vigorous thoughts, and besides an abundance of pleasant conceits. We instance a few of the latter class, such as: "No man of sensibility ever spoke of a flower as he would of a fungus, a pebble, or a sponge. Indeed, they are more life-like than many animals." In the same connection he speaks of the chick weed, and says: "It leads out the snow drop and the crocus. It will open its floral eye and look the thermometer in the face at thirty-two degrees." Again, in depicting an apple orchard in full bloom, he adds: "Such a sight is equal to a sunset, which is but a blossoming of the clouds." And yet this man, so appreciative of "the tiniest flower that blooms," was at times fiercely vindictive. There were occasions when his bitter utterances, even from the pulpit, reminded you of a volcanic vent pouring forth scoriæ, ashes and torrents of lava. As he drew nearer to the end there was less of this bitterness. Especially did he rid himself of that intense sectionalism that in former days marred the beauty and symmetry of his character.

The far-famed Boston tea party, viewed simply as a business transaction, was verily much ado about nothing. It is estimated that Dr. Sam Johnson and his companions at Mrs. Thrale's, consumed more tea at a single sitting than any thousand families in the thirteen colonies outside of Boston, Richmond, Charleston and other leading towns. The rank and file of the old continentals had no relish for "thin potations." It was the principle of taxation without representation that they so fiercely antagonized, and not the small grievance of a trifling duty on tea. When parliament repealed the tax but retained the obnoxious principle in the preamble of the repealing act, they were by no means placated, but resisted unto bloodshed. It is strange that we have so far lost sight of the traditions of these conscript fathers that we stoop to any burden of taxation that a partisan majority may impose. How long will Ringmaster Reed rule the congressional hippodrome by the crack of the party whip?

A well-known Atlantian writes us for information in regard to the old air "Sugar in the Gourd." Yet another skilled in folk-lore thinks that it is a vvlgar ditty. As to this last point, we are well aware that in the old plantation days at corn-shuckings and like frolics, there were associated with it some lines rather suggestive of nastiness. This, we consider the work of some fellow of the baser sort. The tune itself, for aught that appears, is a clean tune, not less so than "Auld Lang Syne" or "Robin Adair." Some of our best camp meeting, and even revival, songs have been travestied and made to do the dirty work of the devil.

The tune, as its title indicates, belongs to what a geologist would call the palæozoic age of American civilization. Our grandmothers, except amongst the F. F. V's, had no china tea sets, and kept their salt and sugar and hog fat in old-fashioned gourds. Sugar was then a rare and expensive commodity, and prudent housewives put it in a gourd as a precaution against the raiding of boys and girls. The quatrain of which we are reminded,

"Sugar in the gourd
And you can't get it out;
The way to get the sugar out
Is to roll the gourd about."

is seemingly harmless doggerel. The motto of the Order of the Garter is just here in point: "Evil be to him that evil thinks."

It deserves mentioning, as a rare coincidence, that three of the most distinguished physicians of Atlanta graduated in the same class from the same medical college (Jefferson, Philadelphia), in 1869. We refer to Dr. A. W. Calhoun, the great oculist, and Dr. R. B. Ridley, and Dr. J. S. Todd, widely known as general practitioners.

The first glimpse we ever had of John B. Gordon was through the gray twilight of a spring morning in 1861. The Georgia train was just ready to pull out from the old carshed. On board were the Raccoon Roughs, and on the rear platform stood their gallant young captain. His home-made confederate uniform was well adapted to set off his commanding figure as he addressed some parting words to the hundreds that gathered about him. These were electric words and were responded to by that rebel yell which has since become historical. Not until the train was well under way did he cease his patriotic appeal. Thenceforth until he stood with Lee's other paladins around the council board, at Appomattox, he was close to the flash of the guns, and at no time did he falter or fail.

Through the dark days of reconstruction he kept his "honor virgin," and through all the following years he has met the responsibilities of high civic trusts in a way to entitle him to the verdict of a grateful constituency, "Well done, good and faithful servant." Without disparaging the claims or the merits of any present or prospective rival, we venture the prophecy that his senatorial campaign will be a strictly "veni, vidi, vici" procedure.

"Date Belisario obolum quem virtus evexit sed invidia depressit" would not be a fitting epitaph for "the man of the 12th of May."

Rapid Census Taking.

From The Philadelphia Record.

The English method of censustaking is in strong contrast to the plan adopted in the United States. It could not be used in this country unless the long string of senseless questions which the American public was required to answer should be cut to pieces. The English census officials are content with asking a few questions, and hence are free to use a system that can be worked rapidly. It is probable that Mayor Fitler will take a census of Philadelphia this fall, after all the people shall have returned to the city. The count will be made by the police, and the plan adopted will be similar to the English method, which is executed in a day.

In England the work is done under the supervision of registrar general, who is assisted by two eminent statisticians specially selected for the work. The count is made usually on Sunday, and the 5th of April, 1891, is fixed for the next enumeration. About 50,000 enumerators will be required to do the work, and they are selected from the most intelligent, trustworthy and active citizens, regardless of politics. The work is overlooked by 4,000 registrars and 900 superintendent registrars. Each man is paid at the rate of $5 for the day.

Sunday is selected as the day when most people are at home. Persons engaged in work away from home on the day set apart are included in the schedules left at their houses, and persons traveling are included in the schedule of the hotel or inn where they may sleep on the Sunday night. The enumerators are required to send their books to the registrar of the parish or township by April 10th. These books are then examined and corrected and forwarded to the superintendent registrar by April 24th, who, in his turn, revises and corrects, and transmits the whole to the central office. The registrar general makes up his full report and lays it before parliament in June.

The particulars asked are the same as they were ten years ago as to sex, age, profession or occupation, condition as to marriage, relation to head of family and birthplace. Also whether any person is blind, deaf, dumb, imbecile or lunatic. The only new question to be asked is as to the number of rooms occupied by a lodger or person who does not rent a house. No question is asked in England, Wales and Scotland as to religion, but in Ireland each person is asked his or her religious profession. Prior schedules are sent to every residence in advance of the enumeration, to be filled up by the head of the family. This has never been done in the United States, although it is adopted by nearly every European country. It is calculated that the population of England and Wales will amount up to over 30,000,000; Scotland, 4,000,000, and Ireland, 5,500,000. About one-seventh of the total population of England and Wales is concentrated in London.

"That Beats Balloons."

From The Fall River Gazette.

A boy with a wonderful capacity for cold water made a kind of Noah's ark time of it last evening for people who dwelt around the south park. There is a tall standpipe near the park where the sprinkling carts load up, and the pressure from the pond at that point is something like a million pounds to the square inch. Just what possessed that aforesaid boy to climb that standpipe while the band was playing gayly in the bandstand will probably never be known. Possibly he had found life too slow at the drinking fountain, and it may be that he didn't think he could do the stand-pipe any harm. At any rate he shinned up and began monkeying with the cap on the top. A full-grown man with steel appliances would undoubtedly have experienced considerable difficulty in unfastening the cap, but the foot-high urchin found it easy enough. His accomplishment will surprise him to the end of his days. He was bending directly over the pipe, stomach down, when the last thread of the cap-screw was loosened.

There was a swish and a roar and a million-pound pressure sent a mighty volume of water a 1,000 feet into the air. It would have been a magnificent spectacle but for one feature which froze the blood in the veins of the assembled multitude. As far as the eye could reach, and almost at the very top of this tower of water, a tiny speck slowly revolved. It was the small boy, helpless, and feebly waving his hands and feet in his terror. Fortunately the tremendous force supported him, and the centrifugal power convexing toward the sides of the torrent, kept him in the middle. It was wet work looking on, but for a few seconds nobody dared to move. Then a brave member of the police department recovered his presence of mind and darted to the Park house telephone. A little later Superintendent Kiernan, of the waterworks, arrived on the scene, pale but determined.

The same thought seemed to inspire the crowd at the same moment, for 500 voices exclaimed: "You must let him down easy." Superintendent Kiernan needed no such warning. He knew that to shut off the supply suddenly meant a terrible fall for the half-drowned lad, who had ceased to move up there among the stars, and with a touch as light as a woman's he began to turn back the swift tide in the main artery.

Inch by inch the tower of water diminished; inch by inch that small speck of humanity descended. The excitement was at a concert pitch. Everybody spoke in hoarse whispers. Finally a joyous cheer rang out. The urchin was thirty feet from the ground, and scores of arms were outstretched to receive him. "Stand steady," was the order and the last spoonful of water was turned off, and the boy dropped safely into the network of hands. "That beats balloons," he said, as he wiped his face with his dripping sleeve.

Time Almost Up.

GORDON'S REPLY

TO THE CHALLENGE OF HON. T. M. NORWOOD FOR JOINT DEBATE.

He Neither Accepts Nor Refuses the Challenge—He Contends that Norwood First Attacked Him.

THE CONSTITUTION printed yesterday the letter of Hon. T. M. Norwood, challenging General Gordon to a joint debate in Atlanta.

The matter was the political sensation of the day. It was talked about everywhere, and varying opinions were expressed as to the merits of the proposition and its final outcome.

General Gordon's answer was not generally expected to be a positive acceptance or a positive refusal.

His being an avowed candidate, while Mr. Norwood was not, was ground enough for the opinion.

THE ANSWER TO NORWOOD.

That this general expectation was well founded is shown by the letter itself:

ATLANTA, September 17 1890.—Hon. T. M. Norwood, Savannah, Ga. Dear Sir—I accept with pleasure your challenge for a joint debate if you will frankly and publicly announce yourself a candidate for the senate. Your interview led the country to understand that you are anxious to be elected, while unwilling to declare your candidacy. You must perceive the manifest inequality of the platforms on which we would respectively stand, in a joint debate, with my public announcement of my candidacy, while you are seeking to place yourself in the attitude of a self-sacrificing patriot, who prefers "private life," and will only consent to serve in the senate in order to save your country.

Besides, if I am to meet in joint debate every man might challenge me while denying his candidacy, my whole time would be occupied until the meeting of the legislature. Declare your candidacy in an open letter or public announcement to the people and you will find me ready to meet you anywhere, on equal footing and equal terms.

One word as to my remarks which you quote. I have never yet assailed one of my fellow-citizens, except in resenting an insult first made upon me. This has been the invariable rule of my life and you furnish no exception to this rule. You went out of your way before your name had even been mentioned by me to say some very unworthy things about me in your interview. You did not designate me by name, but you spoke of the one candidate and every man in Georgia knows that you referred to me. You said that you did not consider it any "sin" to run against that candidate and that the senate was not "private property," as though I had assumed to own a seat in the senate as my private estate, and therefore that I occupied the absurd attitude of holding it a "sin" to have any man oppose me. Nothing could be more unprovoked or more unjust; and few things could be more offensive to a man of ordinary sensibilities. It was this unworthy talk of yours, under the guise of being no candidate, and "preferring private life," while seeking to damage me in the estimation of this people that called forth the criticism of which you complain. I am respectfully yours,

J. B. GORDON.

THE VOICE OF THE PEARL.

I heard the song of the mermaid pause,
And sigh on the golden strand,
Then I rolled from the edge of the rocky ledge—
A hard, white grain of sand.

I danced on the comb of the salty spray,
And gleamed in the sun like a star,
Then I dropped in the mystical caves of the deep
When the tide crept out from the bar.

And I sighed for the happy day that was dead,
On the leaf of the seaweed's bloom,
And I hardened my heart and ground my spear
In the woe of my watery gloom.

But a mollusk unbarred her prison gate,
And opened her home to me,
And I lodged in the cell of the cloistered one
The silent nun of the sea.

I wooed her, yea, with the cruel thrust
Of the sharp, keen-pointed spear,
Till I felt on its edge the quivering drop
Of the silent sufferer's tear.

Yea, what was the silent one to me,
The silent nun in the silent sea?
Thou wert of me and I was of thee,
Thou silent nun in the silent sea.

At last, two plunged through the sighing wave
To rob the sea of her own,
And they shattered the wall of the cloistered nun
In their greed for the tear-drop stone.

They severed the life that was hers and mine,
And drew out my knife from her side—
But one left his hope in the salty deep,
And ebbed out his breath with the tide.

But what was the diver's life to me,
The rarest pearl in the rayless sea—
Yea, what was the diver's life to me—
The robber and filcher of the sea!

I lay on the breast of a rare, white bride,
Just hid by the bridal veil,
And I felt the throb of the wild, young heart,
And I saw that her cheek was pale;

I, only I—there were tears and joy,
And joy and tears for the twain,
But I hid my heart in the pulsing breast,
That should press me close, again.

For what were the tears of the bride to me,
The joy of the years that were to be,
To me, the gem of the silent sea,
What were the tears of the bride to me?

I lie on the breast of the shrouded dead,
Under the mould and the cold,
And I hide in my heart the missing strands
Of a tale that was never told;

And the grave worm creeps and the ground squirrel holds
His revels within my home—
And the bride in her mouldering veil is mine,
And the glad years never come.

But what are the tears of men to me,
The gem of tears from the silent sea,
The woes that have been and the woes that will be—
What are the tears of men to me?

PEACE BETWEEN THEM

COLONEL LIVINGSTON AND GOVERNOR GORDON

Submit Their Differences to a Committee of Six, Which Acts as a Board of Honor—Settlement Reached.

There was considerable excitement in the city all day yesterday over a rumored correspondence between Governor Gordon and Colonel L. F. Livingston.

Various rumors were afloat as to the purport of the correspondence. Some thought on account of the hostile card Governor Gordon printed in THE CONSTITUTION in explanation of his remarks quoted in Colonel W. L. Peek's speech at Conyers, that the subject matter of the correspondence was in anticipation of a hostile meeting. Lively efforts were made to get at the bottom of the matter and a CONSTITUTION reporter was soon on track of the whole affair. Colonel Livingston and Governor Gordon would say nothing about the matter for publication, and nothing definite could be ascertained from their friends.

Colonel Thomas J. Lyon, who is a warm personal friend and supporter of Governor Gordon, was very busy all the morning. He is also an alliancemen and friend of Colonel Livingston. It turned out, on investigation, that Colonel Lyon, who had occasion the day before to visit alliance headquarters, to see about the remarks made by Colonel Peek in the address at Conyers, after that matter had been amicably settled, remarked to Colonel Livingston in substance: "Why can't you and Gordon get together and stop your recriminations. It is not doing the democratic party nor the alliance any good," to which Colonel Livingston replied: "I am not aware of the fact that I have made any charges against Governor Gordon. The first intimation I had that Governor Gordon was making a public assault on me was just as I went on the stand to make a speech at Elberton some days ago, a telegram was handed to me from a friend giving the information. I made my speech and made no charges on Governor Gordon. I made up my mind to wait and see what he had said. I read his card in THE CONSTITUTION, and have made up my mind to address him a note at the proper time, stating the fact that I had made no charges against him, and if it is not corrected, I then shall decide on what I will say."

Colonel Lyon at once saw there was a misunderstanding, and suggested a conference between the gentlemen, and, in a subsequent conversation with Colonel Livingston, suggested that Colonel Livingston write a letter to Governor Gordon, making a denial of any charge, and ask an interview on the subject, and that he thought the whole matter could be amicably adjusted. Colonel Livingston promptly agreed to it, and wrote the following letter to Governor Gordon.

OFFICE OF PRESIDENT GEORGIA STATE ALLIANCE, L. F. LIVINGSTON, PRESIDENT, ATLANTA, Ga., September 16, 1890—Governor John B. Gordon, Executive Office, Atlanta, Ga.—Dear Sir: In your Conyers speech, also in your card in today's CONSTITUTION, you reflect severely upon me personally, and give as a reason that I wilfully slandered you. This I deny. I made no charge that reflects on your official or private character. I have endeavored in all walks of life to live an honest and respectable life, and I am entirely ignorant of the gross misconduct to which you refer. Believing that my duty is first to seek an interview with you before going to the public, that we may understand each other touching so grave a matter, I ask that in company with Colonel T. J. Lyon and Colonel Wallace Bainard an interview, hoping that a proper adjustment may grow out of the personal conference. Most respectfully, L. F. LIVINGSTON.

To which Governor Gordon promptly responded as follows:

STATE OF GEORGIA, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, ATLANTA, Ga., September 16, 1890.—Hon. L. F. Livingston, Atlanta, Ga.—Dear Sir: Your note of the 16th instant, in which you say: "I deny having made any charge reflecting upon your official or your private character," and in which you ask an interview, has been received.

In view of your statement that you have not made any charge reflecting upon my official or private character, I will see you at the capitol this morning at 12 o'clock.

I will be pleased to have you bring, as you suggest, the two gentlemen whom you name.

Very respectfully, J. B. GORDON.

The gentlemen met at the capitol at time and place agreed upon, and after a full and free talk, in which most of the statements made by Colonel Livingston to Colonel Lyon were reiterated, it was finally agreed between Governor Gordon and Colonel Livingston that each should select three friends and submit the facts to them, and leave the settlement of the matter to the six gentlemen. It was further agreed that they should meet at the office of the governor at 3 o'clock p. m. Governor Gordon selected Colonel Thomas J. Lyon, Hon. Milton A. Candler and Captain W. D. Ellis. Colonel Livingston selected Mr. Jack J. Spalding, Major Campbell Wallace, and Mr. Henry Y. McCord. These gentlemen met between 3 and 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and after Major Wallace found that it would consume considerable time, asked to be excused on account of the feeble condition of his wife, and Colonel Livingston consented to go on with the remaining five. These gentlemen were in close conference until 7 o'clock last night. The governor had gone to the mansion and Colonel Livingston had gone to his hotel. About 7 o'clock they agreed on a report. What was said and done—what was discussed—by the gentlemen it is impossible to ascertain. The paper they submitted was promptly accepted by Colonel Livingston, and Captain Ellis carried it up to Governor Gordon. He insisted that some changes ought to be made in it—especially emphasizing the fact that his withdrawal of any charges made against Colonel Livingston was made after the denial and withdrawal of all language that could be construed into any reflection upon him—Governor Gordon. Colonel Livingston's friends said they would not consent to any charges being made unless the matter was submitted to Colonel Livingston. The change that Governor Gordon wanted made was then brought to the hotel and submitted to Colonel Livingston, who, after reading it over and considering awhile, said that his denial was broad enough to cover what the governor wanted to state, but that he saw no particular necessity to repeat it, but that he did not come to quibble about the matter, and agreed to it. The following agreement was made:

ATLANTA, September 17.—The undersigned, who are friends of Governor Gordon and Colonel Livingston, were present at the interview proposed in the accompanying correspondence. We are convinced, after hearing the statement of each, that there is no cause of grievance between them. Colonel Livingston reiterated the disclaimer contained in his letter, and said that he not only had not made any charge against Governor Gordon, but that if anyone had heard him say anything which could be construed into a reflection upon Governor Gordon in any way, he (Colonel Livingston) had been misunderstood and gladly withdrew any such language.

Governor Gordon stated after hearing Colonel Livingston's denial of all language that could be construed into any reflection upon him, and also after he had heard Colonel Livingston's explanations that he was entirely satisfied and cheerfully withdrew all he had said that was offensive to Colonel Livingston, or in any way reflected upon him.

MILTON A. CANDLER,
H. Y. MCCORD,
T. J. LYON,
JACK J. SPALDING,
W. D. ELLIS.

It will be seen that after the denial made by Colonel Livingston Governor Gordon withdrew the charges he had made against Colonel Livingston, which is intended to cover all the charges made in his speeches, or his card in THE CONSTITUTION that were offensive to Colonel Livingston.

And "peace reigns in Warsaw."

Colonel T. J. Lyon was mainly instrumental in bringing about the amicable adjustment of what promised to be a very acrimonious debate—but while the war paint has all been rubbed off, and no whitewash used, these two prominent citizens—one the governor of the state, and the other the nominee of the democratic party for congress from this district—are as far apart as ever on the object and aims of the alliance and the subtreasury bill.

SIDEWALK TALKS.

A queer sign.

The other night, in passing the opera house corner, I noticed a very queer sign over a Chinese laundry door. It read, "Furniture Laundry." The place had formerly been a furniture storeroom, but the word "furniture" on the sign hadn't been eliminated, so that when the word "laundry" was painted above the door it made the sign read as above. Upon asking Sammy Chinee what kind of an establishment he was running, and pointing to the sign at the same time, I received the answer: "If Melica man don't go to hellee quickee, I killee." Melica got.

"Do you know," remarked a well-posted and prominent Atlantian yesterday, "that I am opposed to this joint discussion between Gordon and Norwood?"

"And why?" I asked.

"Why?" he repeated. "I'll tell you. Just now Atlanta is prospering, the state is prospering, and we are all moving along in a successful channel. Gordon is popular. So is Norwood. Now just let the two come together before the people and you will stir up a strife. A division among our people will be created, and the great good now going on will be greatly retarded."

"I see," said a member of the board of health, "that the people are talking about bringing water from the Amicolola and the Soque. That's all foolishness. Give us the Chattahoochee. There we can get an abundant flowing steam, which will purify itself as it flows.

"The Confederate Veterans' Association," said Dr. Fox, "is anxious to make some money for the home this fall.

"And I hope we will.

"When the exposition opens the veterans will have two lunch stands on the grounds and we want everybody to remember us. If they do we'll feel quite happy over the result."

Captain Henry C. Hamilton, who has just returned from a trip to Dalton, gives a happy account of some extremely romantic weddings that have lately been celebrated in the "Mountain City." It would seem that the young people of Dalton were having an epidemic of romance on the Romeo and Juliet style.

Last night Mr. Springfield and Miss Hair were married quietly and suddenly by the ordinary of the county. The wedding took place in the county courthouse.

Just a few days afterwards Mr. Neal Trivett, a promising young man of the town, wedded Miss Mary McCarty, a beautiful young lady there. The wedding was to be kept secret until next January, but the town knew it within two days after wards, and blushing with embarrassment from the congratulations that were showered upon him by his jesting friends, the groom was forced to claim his timid bride on the third day after the secret and romantic wedding.

This is not all. Mr. Fred Cape, the handsome and gallant conductor on the Western and Atlantic railroad, and Miss May Tibbs, one of Dalton's prettiest young belles, married just a few days afterwards in a clandestine way, the marriage taking place at the residence of Mr Joseph Kenner, an uncle to the bride.

Next came the marriage of Mr. R. M. Herron and Miss Willie Davis, daughter of Colonel Warren R. Davis, which is the only one of the Dalton weddings that was not clandestine.

It was celebrated at the residence of the bride's father on Monday last, Colonel J. A. R. Hanks officiating. A pleasing little feature of the wedding was that Colonel Hanks had been the man to officiate at the marriage of the bride's father and mother. Many and costly gifts were presented the happy couple by their many friends.

Captain Harry Krouse has just returned from an extended trip through the north and Canada, and in talking about his trip says:

"I saw a lot of big cities but I didn't see any I liked as well as I do Atlanta. However, there is one thing I saw in Montreal that I wish we had in Atlanta, and I think we should have it, too. That is wood pavements. It simply discounts belgian block, and costs very little, if any more. The pavement is made simply of wooden blocks which have undergone a hardening process by being soaked in creosote, and are laid on a foundation of nine or ten inches of macademized rock. It makes the prettiest street you ever saw, and will never wear out. I saw some blocks which had been in use for over four years, and they hadn't worn a bit.

"Then you can hardly hear any noise when carriages pass over them. A horse simply loves to go at a 2:40 gait when he gets on that kind of a road.

"I talked Atlanta up high to everybody I saw, and rather astonished them when I told them about the figures Atlanta dirt brings. They all wanted to know about Atlanta, and a great many are coming to the exposition."

BRIGHT AND BREEZY.

BITS OF LOCAL NEWS GATHERED BY REPORTERS.

The News of a City Briefly Told—Leaves from the Scratch Pads that Constitution Men Carry.

HAS GONE TO NEW YORK.—Mr. Will N Harbin, the well-known southern novelist, the author of "White Marie," has gone from his home in Dalton to New York where he will resume his work.

MRS. GREGORY.—Mrs. Gregory, the artist, who has always been so successful in renovating valuable paintings, is now at work restoring for the state the old portrait of Governor Oglethorpe, and when completed will be hung up in the new capitol.

HE IS SMILING.—There was a new arrival at the home of Mr. W. P. Anderson, 98 W. Fair street, last Tuesday night. It was a boy weighing eight pounds. His father has a kind word and a pleasant smile for each one of his customers this morning.

THEY HAVE GONE.—Captains Foose and Yoeder who have had charge of the Salvation Army work in Atlanta for the past three years left Atlanta last night for their former home in Pennsylvania. The meeting of the army last night was attended by all the friends of Captains Foose and Yoeder and they were given a grand send off.

HORACE BRADLEY.—Mr. Horace, Bradley, so well known in Atlanta, his old home, has written a letter to an Atlanta friend, in which he says:

"I am still director of the art league and am doing regular work for Harper Bros.

Mr. Bradley's many friends in Atlanta will be pleased to hear that he is succeeding so well in New York.

AGAIN CONTINUED.—The case against the "Gallic" club was called in police court yesterday, but on motion was continued again until the 24th. The club was arraigned, or rather Mr. C. P. Johnson as a member and Mr. John Johnson as an employe, were arraigned on a charge of keeping open a tippling house on the Sabbath day for the sale of spirituous and malt liquors.

A TOWN HALL.—The citizens of Kirkwood are discussing the erection of a town hall, and parking a strip of land between the Georgia railroad and the road to Decatur in front of Governor Gordon's residence. This will add another attraction to the place. Kirkwood Grange is to be reorganized next week, and the social features of this social town cultivated more generously.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS.—To see how many improvements have been and are being made in the business portion of the city one need only take a stroll along Whitehall. Rosenfeld's corner is being repainted and overhauled generally, and when finished will be one of the handsomest in the city. Lumpkin, Cole & Calloway have completely changed Jones's old drug store place and made one of the neatest stores in the city of it. The American Notion Company has taken Thornton's old stand and transformed it into a veritable fairy land of goods that please the eye and the pocket. Hirsch's new building is a beauty and an ornament to Atlanta. The Surprise Store occupies half of it already, and Mr Hirsch will remove his stock of clothing into the other part next week. The old stand of the Surprise Store is being painted and overhauled to receive the stock of S. Thanhouser & Son, who will open "The Fair" there next month. It is only a question of a short time when Whitehall street will have the handsomest stores in the southern states, and then the other business portions are building up, too, there being several elegant new buildings in course of erection.

TO START TODAY.

The Farmers' Alliance Ginnery in Full Blast.

BOSTON, Ga., September 17.—[Special.]—The ginnery department will start in full blast tomorrow. A test of the heavy machinery was made this afternoon, by Manager W. H. Whalley, which proved satisfactory.

The cotton crop is reported short. Farmers claim that the boll worm and drought have been very damaging to their crops. Receipts will be about that of last season, which is due to larger territory.

The city hall which recently burned is now being replaced with a very handsome brick structure.

ONE ON HIM.

A Gentleman Who Thought He Had the Only Honest Negro.

Detective Ed Cason tells a pretty good story about a very prominent Israelite.

"He sent for my partner and me," is the way the detective's story goes, "to recover a 20-dollar gold piece which had been stolen from his residence. In his talk he told us that he suspected so and so, and so and so, naming at least a half a dozen servants in his employe.

"Well, we worked on the case some time and didn't get any clew to the 20-dollar gold piece. Finally we found that there was a negro girl in his wife's service as a maid. We went to the gentleman and told him that we suspected this girl. He was indignant, and warned us that we had best not mention our suspicion to his wife, or there was no telling just how she would take it.

"After a good deal of talk he consented for us to try it on. So we went to the lady and by sundry pretenses, succeeded in getting an interview with the girl. In the end she gave herself away by mentioning something about a beau, who came to see her unknown to the gentleman and his family. We went to this young buck, and scared him into a confession. He had been given the 20-dollar gold piece by his sweetheart, the maid, and together they had spent it. He took us to the store where the piece was passed, and as it happened we got the identical money back.

"But here is the funny part of the thing. When we carried the 20-dollar gold piece to the gentleman and his wife, who recognized it as the stolen coin, they were so disgusted that he would not receive it, and so Bedford and I divided.

"You see the gentleman had always boasted that if there ever was an honest negro that girl was the one. He fired her the same day, and hasn't yet begun to look around for her successor."

MR. C. G. LAMBERT

Stopped Over Yesterday to Shake Hands with Atlanta Friends.

Mr. C. G. Lambert, southern manager of the Singer Manufacturing Company, has been in the city for the last day or two, shaking hands with his old friends. Mr. Lambert was, until about a year ago, a resident of this city, and when he changed his headquarters for Richmond, Atlanta lost one of her best and most popular citizens and business men.

In looking after the many southern agencies that are under his management, Mr. Lambert has a chance to see a great deal of the southern territory and to judge of the prosperity of the south. He said yesterday:

"I have found very little apprehension in regard to the stringency of the money market. It is my experience that the middle of September is always the very hardest time of the year on the money market. The demand for money is far greater at this period than at any other time of the year, as the crops have to be moved and it takes money to move them. I anticipate easier times from now on."

"How has the Singer Company's business been during the past year?"

"Far in excess of any other year. We will sell from two offices in Georgia this year as many machines as we formerly sold from every office in the state, and we have them in every town and city of any size at all. Our business has increased in this proportion at every office we have, and I look for a remarkable fall and winter trade."

The Cadets Coming In.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., September 17.—[Special.] The Alabama Military academy opened its first session today with a flourish of trumpets and roaring canons. Seventy-four boarding cadets were matriculated from the following states: Arkansas, 3; Florida, 1; New York, 1; Texas, 4; Virginia, 1; Missouri, 1; Tennessee, 6; Georgia, 1; Indian territory, 1; Ohio, 1; Mexico, 1; South Carolina. 2; New Mexico territory, 1; and Mississipi, 4. The balance are from Alabama. Other cadets are coming on the night trains.

It is very certain the more fully the merits of the People's Mutual Loan and Building Association are understood the more convinced people will become of the real benefits derived from membership, and the degree of perfection, safety and encouragement it offers to persons of moderate means. Stock can be taken with R. W. Tidwell, A. P. Stewart, M. A. Smith, J. A. Miller, G. O. Williams, C. B. McGaughey, A. J. Stewart, Robert Schmidt, J. A. Lyon, or E. P. McBurney, 15 North Broad. 5p-tf

COUNTY PRIMARY.

THE TOTAL REGISTRATION IS OVER SEVEN THOUSAND.

What the Footing of the Registration Books Show in the Wards and Precincts—Primary October 14th.

Seven thousand one hundred and seventy-five.

That is the total number of voters qualified to vote in the coming primary for the nomination of county officers.

Yesterday the registration books were footed up, giving the figures as above.

Of this number 5,529 voters are in the city, and 1,646 in the county districts.

By wards the city registration is as follows:

First ward	1,034
Second ward	1,064
Third ward	649
Fourth ward	799
Fifth ward	816
Sixth ward	1,167

In the country precincts the following is the way the registration books stand:

Edgewood	84
Buckhead	129
Adamsville	120
Peachtree	87
Bryants	106
Blackhall	328
Collins	105
South Bend	180
Oak Grove	114
East Point	103
Cooks	200

The primary, as has been frequently mentioned heretofore, takes place on the 14th of next month.

However, interest is waxing warm in the political aspect, and keeping the date of the day of trial before the public, will serve to keep things on the move—especially the candidates and their coachers.

There have been no new developments in the situation recently. The two sheriff tickets and the rival candidates for the tax receivership monopolize the interest.

Both the "ins" and the would-like-to-be "ins," are knuckling down to business, and even at this comparatively early stage of the game he is an unconsequential citizen indeed, who has not had the smiling eye of the politician cast his way, with an unmistakable wink.

So far the committee appointed by Chairman Brown to appoint managers for the election has done nothing in that direction.

It is probable, however, that steps toward the appointment of managers will be done this week, or at any rate during the early part of next week.

Chairman Brown said yesterday that he thought it probable that a general conference of the candidates and the committee would be held before any appointments were made. This is to be done in order to allow the candidates a voice in the selection of managers.

"They will meet," Mr. Brown said, "on the call of Captain A. J. West, chairman of the committee on managers. By pursuing this course all sides must be pleased, and an important feature in the satisfactory conducting of the primary will be met.

As will be noticed, the registration is just about an average. Some of the country precincts show up a very full registration, which shows what interest is being manifested by the farmers in the choice of the candidates offering.

Warm weather often causes extreme tired feeling and debility, and in the weakened condition of the system, diseases arising from impure blood are liable to appear. To gain strength, to overcome disease, and to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

All disorders caused by a bilious state of the system can be cured by using Carter's Little Liver Pills. No pain, griping or discomfort attending their use. Try them.

IT WILL BE BUILT.

MACHEN'S ROAD, THE MIDDLE GEORGIA AND ATLANTIC.

His Party of Capitalists Arrives Last Evening—Delegations from Savannah and Sandersville.

It will be built!

That's the outlook for Machen's road, the Middle Georgia and Atlantic.

A new trade thoroughfare from Atlanta to deep water, following Sherman's route in his famous march to the sea.

It has been a long while since Atlanta business men were so unanimously and enthusiastically committed to an enterprise of that sort.

Atlanta is posed now as the mascot of the undertaking.

Failure is out of the question.

THE CAPITALISTS ARE HERE.

A party of capitalists, to look into the Middle Georgia and Atlantic enterprise, arrived in Atlanta last evening.

In the party are:

Henry E. Cobb, of Brewster, Cobb & Esterbrook, bankers, Boston.

Schuyler Quackenbush, of Edward Sweet & Co., bankers, New York.

L. H. Taylor and John P. Watson, of L. H. Taylor & Co., bankers, Philadelphia.

J. Tennis and E. A. Tennnis, of Philadelphia.

Charles Benner, of New York.

Colonel R. L. Worthen, of Sandersville, is here with the party. Also Mr. F. M. Farley and Colonel William Garrard, of Savannah, are here.

Another delegation from Savannah, appointed by the council of that city, will be here today.

Still another delegation from Sandersville is coming up.

Quite a number of other home capitalists, interested in the building of the road, will be here today, or will join the party after leaving here.

THE PROGRAMME TODAY.

Today at 10 o'clock there will be an informal gathering of the business men of Atlanta at the Kimball.

They will meet here the visiting gentlemen of Mr. Machen's party.

After this the visitors will be driven over the city, visiting the points of interest here and near at hand.

Tomorrow morning they leave on the Georgia train. They will be met at Madison by a special train, which will carry them to Machen. Here they will be tendered a reception, and spend the night.

Next day they go from Machen to Eatonton over that section of the M. G. and A., eighteen miles, already completed and in operation. The party will spend the day in Eatonton, returning then to Machen.

[illegible] up for the remainder of the trip.

The only definite further arrangement is a trip to Savannah.

They will pass through Atlanta and stop over here on the return home.

At that time an elaborate reception will be tendered them, with banquet accompaniment.

GOVERNOR JONES.

ALABAMA'S NEXT GOVERNOR WITH ATLANTA FRIENDS.

He Talks About the Alliance of Alabama and Politics—The Alabama Farmers Make No Issues.

Governor-elect Thomas Jones, of Alabama, was in Atlanta last night.

Governor Jones was accompanied by his wife, and they are on their way to Virginia to spend several weeks.

There were many old friends of the governor to greet him with genuine cordiality at the Kimball last night, and showers of congratulations were heaped upon him for the success of his recent campaign for governor of Alabama.

Governor Jones, with his becoming modesty, had but little to say about his race, however, to the many inquiries of his old Georgia friends.

"I went into the nominating convention," said he, "absolutely with no issue. I was fighting nobody, and would have been much disappointed if anybody would have fought me.

"It is true I was opposed to the subtreasury bill, but the farmers of Alabama didn't make that an issue predominant over democratic fidelity, so my candidacy could only have been viewed in the light of democracy."

When asked about the political situation of the alliance in Alabama, Governor Jones said:

"Well, the alliance in my state is anything but a political organization. The farmers have joined simply for defense, and are taking no aggressive steps in politics at all. Things are quiet in politics, and the farming people are revoling in the promise of an abundant harvest. They are happy enough with the results of the alliance already realized and are not making any political claims."

Governor Jones is a native Georgian, and lived for sometime in Atlanta. He was born in Macon, and the town Jonesboro was named for his father.

Governor Jones was elected governor of Alabama by a majority of 100,000, and is now awaiting his inauguration to enter upon the duties of his office.

He will leave Atlanta this morning, accompanied by Mrs. Jones, for Virginia.

Pets of Some Famous People.

From The Chicago News.

The Mussulman's regard for cats is due to the fondness which Mahomet evinced for the feline. The prophet loved women, perfume and cats, and he did not hesitate to gratify these passions to the fullest extent. His favorite cat is said to have been a tortoise-shell which he named Mulzza. This pet seems to have had pretty much her own way in Mahomet's household. She slept by his couch, ate from his platter, and indulged in divers familiarities which, attempted by a human being, would have been regarded as impieties. One day this cat lay asleep on the prophet's robe, which had been thrown carelessly over a chair. The prophet himself, called on to proceed to the mosque for prayers, was for a moment puzzled as to what he should do about getting possession of his robe. But his quandary was short. Rather than awaken the cat, he carefully cut all around that part of the robe on which his pet lay, and, donning the mutilated garment, proceeded to his religious duties.

A volume could be filled with interesting narratives of the fondness manifested by famous men and women for pets among dumb creatures. Robespierre, the bloodiest of wretches had a genuine passion for doves and pigeons; Sir Isaac Newton dallied with a pet poodle; Dick Whittington's cat is immortal; Addison confessed to a love for birds, and so did Victor Hugo (and some of Hugo's sweetest lyrics are of birds); Scott enjoyed dogs as much as Goethe (the heartless creature!) hated them; Bismarck, too, is an enthusiastic dog-fancier; the British queen makes pampered pets of Jersey cows; one of our ex-presidents is devoted to poultry; Henry Irving's constant attendant is a fox hound; Modjeska used to carry two pet alligators with her; Sara Bernhardt became devoted to a tiger whelp; Gladstone wept like a child when his famous parrot died; Stoddard, the poet, is devoted to a little blind terrier; Julian Hawthorne has a pet crow and a hawk that dwell in harmony together; Alexander loved his horse as madly as many men at the present time love that most faithful of brute servitors; George Francis Train feeds sparrows, and, when he visited Carlsbad many years ago, Schiller used to wander beside the Tepel and throw bread crumbs to the perch and trout in that pretty stream; Watts had a pet magpie which he tried for many years to break of the vice of stealing; Father Prout petted chickens and John Wilson doted on the horse; James Hogg had always a dog with him and so did Hogarth and Rubens; Sam Johnson avowed a predilection for cats, so did Goldsmith and so did Leigh Hunt; Ouida has a parrot, and Hannah More was as fond of her bullfinch as Harriet Martineau was of her purring tabby. When he was a tailor in Tennessee, Andy Johnson made much of a pet coon, and General Grant's favorite was a staunch saddle horse. Beecher loved canary birds; the charming wife of ex-President Cleveland became much attached to a marmoset; the same robin has nested in Whittier's orchard many years. The late Henry Grady, of Georgia, had an exceeding fondness for Newfoundland dogs; Patti has a monstrous St. Bernard, and Aimee used to carry a miniature tan terrier with her on her tours. And so the list might be extended column after column, One of the prettiest little books for children is Grace Greenwood's "History of My Pets," and the child is to be pitied who has not wept over the touching story of Rab and his friends.

THE SYPTOMS OF LIVER COMPLAINT

are a bitter or bad taste in mouth, pain in the back, sidesor joints, often mistaken for Rheumatism; sour stomach, loss of appetite, bowels alternately costive and lax, headache, lossof memory, with a painful sensation of having failed todo somethin which ought to have been done; debility, low spirits, a thick yellow appearance of the skin and eyes; a dry cough often mistaken for consumption.

Sometimes many of these symptoms attend the disease, at others very few; but the Liver, the largest organ in the body, is generally the seat of the disease, and if not regulated in time great suffering, wretchedness and death will ensue,

THE FEDERAL COURTS.

THE CIVIL DOCKET MADE UP FOR THE OCTOBER TERM.

Some Important Damage Suits—The Work of the Revenue Officers Among the Moonshiners—Busy Session.

The United States court is ready for business.

There is a full docket made up for the criminal session which will be taken up in November, and more than 500 cases are awaiting the attention of the judge and jury.

For the civil docket to be taken up at the beginning of the October term there are a few important cases that will involve some interesting features.

Among the latest cases filed are the following:

Robert Anderson vs. the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railway Company, Glenn & Maddox for plaintiff, and Bacon & Rutherford for defendant. It is a suit for $25,000 damages, the plaintiff having been hurt while employed by the road.

Mrs. S. J. Ransom, administratrix, brings suit against the Richmond and Danville railroad for $25,000, basing her claim on the death of her husband, who was killed in a wreck while employed by the road.

There is an important suit filed by the Equitable Mortgage Company against Judith E. Sheibley.

Another important suit for damages will be that brought against the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company by James Bell, the engineer who had his leg cut off by an engine, while working for the road. He sues for $25,000.

The civil dockot for the October term of the court will be unusually light, there having been only about a dozen cases filed.

The grand jury will meet the first Monday in October and take up the work to be done before the court opens.

Raiding Distilleries.

The revenue officers have been sleeping but little for the past few days.

The report of an enormous illicit distillery was reported at the collector's office yesterday, as having been made about nine miles north of Clarkesville, in Habersham county.

The raid was a most notable one, having been made in the heart of the Tallulah and Blue Ridge mountains, and bringing to light one of the largest illicit distilleries ever disclosed in those regions.

The officers are busy in other sections of the state, but it is said by all of them that the business is gradually playing out in this state.

"I would rather work in the revenue service in Georgia than any state I ever have yet worked in," said Deputy Collector Hetherington.

"There are fewer illicit distillers here, and they are of a better class of people than in any state I have ever served in," he continued. "In Kentucky I frequently found the moonshiners to be as fierce as lions, and they didn't any more mind shooting down officers than shooting birds."

HE RAN THE GAUNTLET.

A Tipsy Individual Who Narrowly Escaped Disaster.

Last night about 10 o'clock—a little after—the echoing din of closing barroom doors still ringing in the streets—at that critical period in the frolicsome soaks existence between barroom and bed, a dark figure was seen unsteadily swaying around the corner of Alabama and Pryor streets, pausing for a brief moment braced against the brick wall of the Block building.

There was a bustle about the station house, whose electric lighted front loomed up threateningly before the befuddled pedestrian. The patrol wagon was just starting out on a call, and in sight of the bevy of stalwart policemen who lingered at the artesian hydrant to take a last look at the vanishing wagon, as it rounded the Hunter street corner, he of doubtful limbs stood aghast—momentarily rooted to the spot, as it were.

But directly the policemen turn and betake themselves to the comfortable chairs that sit about invitingly inside the office.

The pedestrian—if people who walk like they were chasing a chipmunk on a worm fence are pedestrians, properly speaking—muttered something about opportunities lost that never return, let go his hold on the friendly awning post that had stood by him when his own legs failed, made a dive in the direction of Hunter street, past the station house—that place compared to Rome, because it don't make much difference which road a man takes, if he is full he is pretty apt to pull up there.

From part to part the wandering imbiber swung with all the dexterity his foggy head could muster. At each swing he paused long enough to cast a wistful glance to the menacing front of the rock pile anteroom across the street.

Luck was his. At last he was almost clear, when his nerves failed him and with a dizzy lunge he pitched toward the Little Greek's fruit stand. For an instant it seemed that grave disaster was certain, hut just in the nick of time the Greek darted out to defend his possessions, and, with a shove, turned the wanderer off toward the curb.

There he hitched to another friend—a telephone post—for a very brief space, not omitting, however, to cast a stereotyped look over his shoulder to the station house. Then he lunged on again, and, with several series of sundry lunges, finally disappeared around the chamber of commerce corner.

He had run the gauntlet, escaped; the drunkest man who ever hugged a telephone pole.

A Good Starting Point.

From The Pittsburg Leader.

The Republican party can never rid itself of internal strife and mutual crimination and recrimination and regain its old standing in the respect and affections of the people until it repudiates the men and their measures who have brought reproach upon her. Pennsylvania is the best place and the pending campaign a good time to begin the work of reform.

Chills and Fever.

When a person gets the chills and fever they don't want to take medicine that does them no good. They don't feel a bit like doing such a foolish thing. They want a medicine that is safe and one that is sure. Well, there is one remedy that, while being perfectly harmless, has never failed and never will fail to completely cure chills and fever, and that remedy is Smith's Tonic Syrup. It is made by Dr. John Bull, Louisville, Ky., and is as sure to cure chill chills and fever as daylight is to follow darkness. In the malarial season it is an excellent remedy to have handy. A single dose will check a cold and allay feverish symptoms. Every intelligent family should keep it in their household and use it as a preventive of colds and malaria, as well as a quick cure.

REPUBLICAN MEETINGS

MR. WALTER JOHNSON NOMINATED FOR CONGRESS IN THE FOURTH.

A Lively Time to Be Had at the Convention Saturday — Colonel Thomas Writes a Card.

The republican congressional convention for this district will meet in Atlanta next Saturday.

From the present outlook it seems that some lively times will be experienced by the delegates before the question as to who shall represent the party in opposition to Colonel Livingston is satisfactorily settled.

A number of candidates will probably be before the convention. Among the men that are talked about for endorsement from the party are Colonel Ed Augier, Judge Bigby, Governer Bullock, Colonel Thomas, Judge Haight and others.

Colonel Buck says, however, that nobody can foretell the result of the convention, but says that some strong candidate will certainly be put in the race with a strong support to back him.

Colonel George S. Thomas seems to be the most probable candidate for endorsement, and it is certain that he would run if chosen.

HE WRITES A CARD.

Concerning his candidacy Colonel Thomas has written the following card:

EDITOR CONSTITUTION—In this morning's CONSTITUTION your reporter quotes me as having said, when asked as to my candidacy for nomination before the republican convention to assemble in this city on the 20th instant:

"I am no aspirant, but if the party calls me, why, I shall go and will wage a powerful a campaign as I am able to do. I will not suffer myself to be drawn into the race, however, unless the republicans pledge me, not only their united votes, but their enthusiastic co-operation, which means nothing more than their substantial aid.

"Now, in the last campaign they were lukewarm, and didn't seem to care whether I was left or not. I won't run if that s going to be their way of support again. But if they nominate me and pledge me their substantial assistance and support, I will run."

What I intended to say and what I understood myself as saying is briefly this:

I am no aspirant for the nomination, but, if the party calls me to go to the front in this campaign, I shall go and do all I can for its success.

I do not desire to make the race, however, unless the leaders and managers of the machinery of the republican party will pledge me not only their votes, but their earnest, active and substantial support.

In the last campaign certain of the leaders and managers of our party seemed lukewarm or indifferent as to whether I was elected or not, and I was left. I don't want to run again with such a support as that.

The point I make on the reporter's statement is this: I have no complaint to make of the republican party. I have been repeatedly honored by that grand old party in having been selected as its standard bearer in three national campaigns, and I feel both proud and greatful for the confidence reposed.

Your reporter will remember that I told him that, in my opinion, the chances for the success of any good republican who could command the confidence and respect of the voters, and at the same time secure the earnest, active and substantial support of the leaders and managers of the party machinery in this district, seemed unusually bright and favorable in this campaign. Respectfully,

GEORGE S. THOMAS.

IN THE FOURTH DISTRICT.

The republicans of the fourth district have nominated Mr. Walter Johnson for congress.

The convention was held at West Point yesterday and Mr. Johnson was nominated by acclamation.

There was a full attendance of delegates, and the meeting was an enthusiastic one.

Mr. Johnson was seen last night and asked if he would accept the nomination, but gave no definite reply.

"The serious illness of my wife," said Mr. Johnson, "has taken my attention from every public affair so completely that I am not prepared to talk about the nomination tendered me by the republicans of the fourth district.

"I am sure," said he "that my friends will forbear so long as my situation is such as it is, and will not hurry me to make any public statement."

BLUE'S OPENING

In His Elegant New Building on Whitehall Street.

At the stroke of 8 o'clock yesterday morning, Mr. E. W. Blue opened wide the doors of his new store, on Whitehall street.

It is No. 73.

But nobody could possibly miss it.

From a little handbag concern Mr. Blue has increased his business to its present dimensions.

Several years ago he came here as an adventurer—that is a business adventurer—in search of a place where honest and conscientious work would pay.

Today he has a $50,000 stock of watches, jewelry, silver plate and all other goods generally found in a jewelry store, in his new house at No. 73 Whitehall street.

The new place is a splendid storeroom, 108 feet long by 30 feet wide, and it is the only jewelry store in the city in which the show cases are illuminated at night by electric lights.

At the opening yesterday morning Mr. Blue had his music box playing a welcome, and in one window was the "Grand Tycoon," bowing and scraping to the gentleman offering him a cigar.

In the other window was the "Eiffel Tower," a beautiful arrangement covered with watches and jewels.

The store was crowded with customers from the opening of the store until the close last night.

Mrs. E. H. Stewart, of the Wesleyan Female Institute, Staunton, Va., of which Rev. William A. Harris is president, will leave Atlanta for Staunton on the 18th of September, and will take charge of any young ladies who wish to attend that institution. For further information, address Mrs. Stewart, 15 E. Cain street, Atlanta, Ga.

THE GREAT SALE

Will Continue Till the 30th—A Sweeping Reduction in Odd China and Bric-a-Brac.

Dobbs, Wey & Co.'s sale of odd china still continues and is increasing in volume daily, as the people learn of the excellent bargains that are offered, in good faith, at original cost. Everybody is satisfied, except some of our smaller competitors, who complain, because the crowd of purchasers flock to our store. This we cannot help, and to make it more interesting, we will offer our entire line of Art Pottery and Bric-a-Brac on the same terms, until the close of this month. This collection consists of choice specimens of "Royal Worcester," "Old Hall," "Doulton's," "Royal Dresden," and of other celebrated factories of Europe. These goods are all of new styles and patterns, as is the china we are now slaughtering. It is the natural result of our immense importing business, exceeding in volume that of all the firms n our line in the city combined, that we should have at the close of the season a great many odd sets and odd pieces, and to close these out in a hurry, we offer INDUCEMENTS in the way of LOW PRICES that MUST make them move.

We still have a large number of Dinner Sets, Chamber Sets, Tea Sets, odd dozens Plates, Cups, Saucers, fancy pieces of china, white and decorated, ALL GOING AT COST while they last.

We are determined to clean out the entire lot before our new stock, now coming over, will be placed on the shelves. Remember, this sale closes with this month, so come in time for your share of the bargains. DOBBS, WEY & CO.,

THE KING OF SNAKES.

THE LARGEST RATTLER IN GEORGIA KILLED IN LEE COUNTY.

He Has Terrorized a Neighborhood for Years—Over Eleven Feet Long—Other News.

The largest rattlesnake ever seen in Georgia was killed Saturday in Lee county upon the plantation of Secretary of State General Phil Cook.

The news comes through Phil Cook, Jr., a son of the general.

The snake has terrorized the neighborhood for years, and its death Saturday was the occasion of a jubilee celebration amongst the darkies in that vicinity. Even the white people joined in the general feeling of relief that so dangerous and dreaded a neighbor was rid of at last.

The snake, by actual measurement, was a little over eleven feet long.

It had nineteen rattles and a button.

BEEN HUNTED FOR YEARS.

The snake has been hunted for years, and traps innumerable have been devised for his capture.

His den is in an impenetrable section of the Kinchafoonee swamp.

Near this is a cypress pond, and between the swamps and the pond is the road.

Hundreds of times his track has been seen across this road. People that had not seen it were loath to believe the stories told about it; but the truth finally became established and the Lee county rattlesnake became famous from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Every year the story is reprinted, with timely variations, to go the round of the press.

The snake has swallowed young pigs, chickens, rabbits and other small animals, and was dreaded by the negroes like a ghost. It was difficult to induce them to travel the road between the pond and the swamp at night.

KILLED AT LAST.

Last Saturday the snake was found across the path near the pond by Mr. Phil Cook.

Without disturbing it, Mr. Cook went off for help; returning with three or four negroes armed with hoes and clubs.

Stealing up near the snake, the negroes fell upon it with the hoes and clubs and finally killed it.

It was cut open, and in its belly was found a full grown buck rabbit. This probably accounts for the dormant and comparatively helpless condition of the snake and the ease with which he was dispatched.

The snake was then thrown across the shoulders of one of the negroes and carried to the house.

Though the negro was a stalwart, muscular man, he staggered under the load.

It was heavier, he declared, than a sack of guano.

General Phil Cook says it was the largest rattlesnake he ever saw or heard of.

At any rate, this is the end of the famous Lee county monster.

The dealer who tries to persuade you to take something else when you call for Hood's Sarsaparilla, is evidently working for his interest, and not yours. Be sure toget Hood's, and no other

It is earnestly desired that my friends meet me at my headquarters, rooms No. 51 and 52, old capitol, to assist in canvassing the registrations and advice as to the best mode of conducting the campaign. I am the regular democratic nominee, and as such, desire the active and earnest co-operation of all members of the party and others who will assist me. Meetings will be held each night at 8 o'clock, from now until the election, October 1st. I am very solicitous that all who have an interest in my race call and aid me. Respectfully,

Strangers in the city will do well if, before opening an account elsewhere, they will call in and see our beautiful store, our large stock, noting at the time the extra quality goods of all kinds. Here, the connoisseur, the epicure, can indulge his taste selecting from a varied stock of the freshest groceries in Atlanta. Just received fresh mackerel, small, but very juicy and sweet, three for 10 cents. More of those delightful Saratoga chips just received; they are crisp, and go well with a well-cooked beefsteak. For tea, we have Larabee's 5 o'clock tea cakes, tea table puffs, cafe wafers, vanilla wafers, zephyrettes and petite sea foam. These are all fresh, palatable and an ornament to the table. Then we have Beatrice, Champagne, Elite, Albert, Oswego, butter wafers and graham crackers. Do you remember those elegant Imported Hoyt & Thorn petite pois and champignons blancs, sur extra? Well, we have them, just imported, arrived here only a few days since. Porterhouse steak and mushrooms, a feast, nothing better. We would be glad if you would note what extra fine quality goods our patrons will get from us this fall. You know the best sugarcorn comes from Maine. We will have "honey sugar corn" and "Thurber's Windham" corn, crimson cluster tomatoes and "Thurber's condensed stewed." Then below is a duplicate of a bill received from San Francisco, Cal., but the goods have not arrived: 25 cases table apricots, 75 cases pears in heavy syrup, 150 cases heavy syrup peaches, lemon cling, yellow Crawford and white Heath, 60 cases white and black cherries, 10 cases green gages, 10 cases golden drop plums. Now what more could you desire in fine table canned fruits? Besides, we guarantee the syrup heavier than any other sold on the market. Had we not bought before the advance, and before the fruit shortage was discovered, it would take $3,000 to place these goods in our store. Besides these we have all kinds of California dried fruits coming. Come over and try our fresh salmon steaks in cans. We have the finest quality French sardines in market. Our chipped dried beef is nice for hasty lunch, or nice served broiled. Boston brown bread, clam chowder, prepared in cans. Try our fancy olives. Have you ever tried our deviled crabs. Our Rijamo coffee is the finest in Atlanta. Thirty days' credit given where desired. HOYT & THORN,

Discard your frying pan, at least for awhile, and if you try this new broiler, you will be well pleased, and probably discard your frying pan altogether. Broiled meat is certainly more wholesome than fried, and we should do all we can to promote health. Sep 15-d3t.

Is situated on the side of the mountain facing the railroad, and the timber is as accessible to the railroad as it is possible to be. On it there are hundreds of chestnut trees 100 feet high, and as straight as an arrow, and many poplar trees are twenty feet in circumference. The timber on the place will sell for twice the price of the tract, and the land is very rich mountain land and produces well. Lumbermen from New York and Boston are buying large tracts in this vicinity for the northern market, and cross-tie timber is in great demand. It is immediately in the mineral belt, and no doubt has valuable mineral properties. It is well watered. The price of $3 per acre for such land so convenient to the market at Atlanta is very low. Lumbermen will do well to investigate this. Will exchange for Atlanta property.

$300 each for two West End lots; 50x250 feet each, with 10-foot side alley. Only one block from the dummy line, and is a strictly first-class neighborhood. Elevated location, and they lie well. Liberal terms.

$10,500 for one of the most desirable homes on W. Peachtree street. It is a new 2-story 8-room house with all modern improvements, and is one of the most attractive homes in the city. Its location is unexcelled, and it is in every way a strictly first-class place. Lot 50x200 feet. Electric cars pass the door. Liberal terms. Call and examine the premises.

$1,500 per acre for beautiful Peachtree lot, 100x750 feet, with 30-foot street on the side. Part of the Dimmock-Reynolds tract, just this side the Belt railroad and opposite the English property. Easy terms.

$135 to $175 each for a number of desirable vacant lots on Curran, Hampton and Grove streets, near Emmett street. They are high and level, and the electric car line is now being built within a few feet of them. Good neighborhood.

$1,250 is what the choice Forest avenue lot, 50x150, can be bought for. It lies well, is in a splendid neighborhood that is already nicely built up with nice houses, has a ten-foot alley in the rear and is decidedly the best vacant lot on the north side for the money. Terms reasonable.

Ormewood Park is that beautiful tract of 100 acres just east of Grant Park and north of the Confederate Veterans' Home property. It is within one-fourth mile of Grant Park, Little Switzerland and the dummy line as it goes around the park. The dummy line to the home runs for a half mile through Ormewood, thus making every lot in the park very accessible. A large force of hands under the direction of Major Charles Boeckh is now at work grading out avenues and drives. A beautiful avenue, 60 feet wide, leading direct from Grant Park and the Boulevard, has already been graded through Ormewood, thus affording one of the most attractive drives around the city. Drive out there this evening and see for yourself. Mr. Harry Woodward has just completed a handsome $4,500 residence at the head of Ormewood avenue, and several more of equal value will be erected shortly by some of our best citizens. The entire 100 acres has been subdivided in the most advantageous manner, and the lots are from one-half to three acres each. No smaller lots will be sold. To those who will erect desirable residences we will sell these lots on most liberal terms, it being the object of the owners to build up this beautiful park with first-class houses rather than sell to speculators. There is no location about the city that is as free from every objectionable feature as this property, and if you seek a suburban home you can do no better than select a lot here. Our prices are from 100 to 200 per cent below that asked for property equally as desirable in any other section.

To Those Seeking an Investment in Suburban Property.

We wish to call your attention to an investment in a large tract of land on Howell's Mill road, which is offered at a low price for a few days only. It is right in the line of the many improvements already made and to be made between Atlanta and the river. It has a beautiful front of 3,000 feet on the road and lies well. Is just the right distance from the city at which to buy to get the best profit. Howell's Mill road has recently been changed from one of the roughest to the best road in Fulton county. Heavy cuts and fills have been made and the road splendidly paved. No objectionable features or surroundings. You can take this alone or a number of gentlemen can take it together. The price is far below what you can buy any other tract equally well situated, and the property is an unusually attractive one. It will pay you to call and get full particulars and inspect it. There is money to be made by acting promptly.

URIC ACID

Is a deadly poison, and when taken up by the system quickly produces death.

Sluggish, inactive kidneys fail to purify the blood, and uric acid is left in it to course through the system, poisoning the whole body, producing uremia, which is so fatal to human life.

To preserve health, the kidneys must be kept in healthy condition. As a Kidney Tonic, no preparation is so effective as

Stuart's Gin and Buchu

It acts promptly, effectively and mildly on the Kidneys and all other portions of the urinary tract, thus keeping the blood pure, and thereby preserving the health.

One of my children, who has been a great sufferer from Kidney troubles, has derived more benefit from

STUART'S GIN AND BUCHU

than all other remedies, and I have tried quite a number.

THE EXPOSITION.

A GREAT ARRAY OF EXHIBITS ENGAGED ALREADY.

The Machinery Hall Filled Up—The Exhibitors Putting in Their Displays—The Alliance Weddings, Etc.

"Piedmont Exposition" will be the toast of the south.

There has never yet been such an effort made as the managers are now making for the success of the next exposition.

It is going to be the greatest thing in the way of a fair ever known to the history of the south, unquestionably.

The people all know it, too, and already it is the talk of the country.

So great has been the rush among exhibitors that the buildings are already engaged almost to the last inch for displays of every variety.

The machinery hall was filled two months ago, and it became necessary for the management to have an additional hall built to the building.

This has been filled, too, with displays, and now the managers are forced to decline engagements for this part of the line of displays.

And all this a month before the exposition opens goes to show in no mistakable way that the exposition is regarded all over the union as the grandest fair ever known in the south.

THE NEW EXHIBITORS.

Among the new exhibitors enrolled on the books yesterday were to be seen the following:

J. H. Nunnally, of Atlanta, will have a splendid display of bicycles, typewriters and the like, and will have such an array as will be interesting in the last degree.

Carter, Dinsmore & Company, of Boston, will give an attractive display of inks, mucilage, etc., which they are now arranging especially for the exposition.

The Demorest Bath Tub Company will have an interesting exhibit of folding bath tubs and such appliances as are in their line.

The Courtland Manufacturing Company, of New York, will bring out a rare collection of buggies, carriages, etc.

L. W. Lord & Co., of Philadelphia, will have a grand exhibit from their machinery halls of boiler-cleansing apparatus.

The Engleburg Huller Company, of Syracuse, New York, will be handsomely represented with a collection of rice and coffee hullers.

The most interesting of the machinery exhibits, perhaps, will be the new cotton harvestor from the J. J. Case Machine Company, of Racine, Wisconsin.

This machine will be put to a practical test for the farmers, and will be a most interesting exhibit, especially to the southern farmer, whose chief product is cotton.

It consists of a harvester and cleaner and a cleaning machine, and is one of the greatest inventions of the day.

The harvester is mounted on wheels, drawn by two mules, stripping the cotton from the stalks and depositing it at the rear of the machine in large sacks carried for that purpose. Neither the mules nor any part of the machine pass over the plant before the cotton is picked. The cotton is gathered in a rough condition, including bolls, and more or less leaf and limbs, which are removed by the cleaning machine through which the gatherings are passed. The harvester or picker cannot be run until the cotton is fully opened, or is ripe enough to gather, as everything is picked off by the machine, whether open or not. Unopened bolls, if mature, will be opened by the cleaning machine.

Many of the applicants for space have been refused, owing to the fact that the machinery hall is filled to overflowing.

THE COTTON BAGGING WEDDINGS.

It is expected that several handsome prizes will be offered to the third and fourth couples accepting the offer of the exposition company, to marry in cotton bagging.

In fact, one of Atlanta's enterprising merchants has already offered to give a special prize to them.

The prizes for the first and second couples accepting the offer are $100 and $50 respectively.

There is much interest felt among the directors and the citizens as to who will be the first couple.

The offers will perhaps come in today or tomorrow.

This will be one of the most attractive features of the exposition,

THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

Has a Regular Meeting in the Statehouse Yesterday.

The display of roses, dahlias and wild flowers at the session of the Atlanta Horticultural Society yesterday morning was very fine.

The lecture of Captain C. K. Maddox on botany was interspersed with questions to the members of the class, and the ready answers proved the progress of the ladies in the study.

Mrs. J. C. Huff gave a recipe for making unfermented wine, as follows:

"To each quart of the grape juice fresh from the press, add one pound of crushed sugar. Let it stand twelve hours. Strain into glass jars, then screw the lids on tightly."

A vote of thanks was returned to Mrs. Huff.

J. J. Toon, Mrs. R. H. Huzza and Mrs. Carpenter were appointed a committee on floral exchange.

A letter from Mr. James Burpitt was read acknowledging his appreciation of the sympathy of the society with him and his family in their double bereavement. His tribute to his daughters was touching. In concluding his letter Mr. Burpitt said: "I want to say this, that if my host of friends around Atlanta are a fair type of the true southerner, then I assert that you southern people are the noblest people on God's earth."

MR. GLOER'S INSURANCE.

The Policy Taken Out by Mr. George D. Gloer Repudiated.

The policy taken out in the Masonic Mutual Benefit Association on the life of Mr. George D. Gloer has been repudiated.

On Tuesday, two weeks previous to his death, when Mr. Gloer was sound and well, the Masonic Mutual Benefit Society, of Indianapolis, wrote him a policy for $25,000.

The papers were forwarded to the home office for inspection and ratification.

In the meantime, Mr. Gloer was attacked with fever, and died from it.

On the same day the policy was sent back to Mr. Gloer's family, with the endorsement that the examining physician declined the risk on account of "action of the heart."

Mr. Gloer was an honest and sober mechanic, and was a fine specimen of physical manhood, apparently. He was induced to take out the policy, so his relatives say, by the persuasion of the agent of the company. He died on Sunday after the application had been made out and forwarded, and the repudiated application was sent back, dated on the day of his death.

THREE NOBLEMEN

Reach Atlanta Last Night with Mr. Fred Schaffner.

Mr. Fred Schaffner, the well-known and popular Atlantian, who will open the Marlborough next month, returned from New York last night, reaching the city by the Richmond and Danville.

A party of Mr. Schaffner's friends was at the union depot to greet him.

As the gentleman stepped from the New York sleeper, three distinguished-looking gentlemen, all evidently foreigners, followed him closely.

Every one who saw them imagined that they were French noblemen.

Mr. Schaffner's friends thought so, too, and observing that the Atlantian knew them, requested an introduction.

With a pleasant smile Mr. Schaffner remarked:

"Gentlemen, this is my head chef, and these two gentlemen are his assistants. After October 1st they will serve you at the Marlborough as you have never been served before."

Mr. Schaffner's friends smiled and admitted that wine was on them.

No remedy in the world is so highly appreciated by mothers as Dr. Bull's Worm Destroyers. Many little children owe their good health to these dainty little candies.

Wonders

Are wrought by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor in restoring gray hair to its original color, promoting a new growth, preventing the hair from falling, keeping it soft, silky, and abundant, and the scalp cool, healthy, and free from dandruff or humors. The universal testimony is that this preparation has no equal as a dressing, and is, therefore, indispensable to every well-furnished toilet.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for some time and it has worked wonders for me. I was troubled with dandruff and was rapidly becoming bald; but since using the Vigor my head is perfectly clear of dandruff, the hair has ceased coming out, and I now have a good growth, of the same color as when I was a young woman. I can heartily recommend any one suffering from dandruff or loss of hair to use Ayer's Hair Vigor as a dressing."—Mrs. Lydia O. Moody, East Pittston, Me.

"Some time ago my wife's hair began to come out quite freely.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

not only prevented my wife from becoming bald, but it also caused an entirely new growth of hair. I am ready to certify to this statement before a justice of the peace."—H. Hulsebus, Lewisburgh, Iowa.

"Some years ago, after a severe attack of brain fever, my hair all came out. I used such preparations for restoring it as my physicians ordered, but failed to produce a growth of hair. I then tried, successively, several articles recommended by druggists, and all alike fell short of accomplishing the desired result. The last remedy I applied was Ayer's Hair Vigor, which brought a growth of hair in a few weeks. I think I used eight bottles in two years; more than was necessary as a restorative, but I liked it as a dressing, and have continued to use it for that purpose. I believe Ayer's Hair Vigor possesses virtues far above those of any similar preparation now on the market."—Vincent Jones, Richmond, Ind.

THE ADVERTISERS' ADVICE
—TO—
ERUBESCENT CONTESTANTS.

In promulgating esoteric cogitations or superficial sentimentalities and philosophical or psychological theories beware of platitudinous ponderosity. Avoid tautological sesquipedalian phraseology. Let your erudite statements of the subject possess a clarified conciseness, compacted comprehensibleness, coalescent consistency, concentrated cogency and above all disdain pseudography or being psittaceous.

Balls, bats, tops, hoops, marbles and a' that are very well for a growing vigorous boy. They help to make the physical frame compact, lithe, graceful; also muscular, sinewy, robust. But the development of his mental strength is equally necessary. We recognize that, and in order to stimulate the studious, offer three useful prizes for the three ablest written essays on "Courage."

Here are the particulars and conditions of the interesting contest:

1st Prize---Choice of our $15 Suits.
2d Prize---Choice of our $10 Overcoats.
3d Prize---Choice of our $5 Pants.

Rule 1—No boy exceeding 16 years of age is eligible to write for a prize.
Rule 2—Competition is not limited to Atlanta boys. Free to all from Maine to California.
Rule 3—No composition should contain less than 500 or more than 600 words.
Rule 4—Manuscript received later than Monday, October 20th, will be rejected.
Rule 5—Compositions written on both sides the paper will be refused consideration.
Rule 6—Address clearly, "Courage," care of Eiseman Bros., Clothiers, Atlanta.

In Sunday's Constitution of October the 26th, we will publish the pictures, compositions and a short sketch of the boys who win.

This is a rare chance for brainy boys.

PLEADING FOR RIGHT

AN HONEST REPUBLICAN IN THE HOUSE.

Mr. Cheadle Warns His Party that They Are Doing Wrong in Attempting to Oust Venable from His Seat.

WASHINGTON, September 17.—In the house the reading of yesterday's journal consumed more than half an hour.

Mr. Haugen, of Wisconsin, demanded the regular order, being the Langston-Venable contested election case; but Mr. Payson interposed with the conference report on the land grant forfeiture bill.

Mr. Rowell, in behalf of the committee on elections, raised the question of consideration against the conference report.

On a standing vote the result was 48 to 82 against considering the conference report, and Mr. O'Farrell demanded and the house ordered the yeas and nays.

Mr. Payson then desired to withdraw the report, but the speaker ruled that, the yeas and nays being ordered, this could not be done.

The house decided—yeas 62, nays 137—not to consider the conference report.

Mr. Haugen then called up the election case, against which Mr. O'Ferrall raised the question of consideration. During roll call, nearly all the democratic members deserted the chamber, leaving but a bare dozen present to look out for their interests.

Before the announcement of the vote, Mr. O'Ferrall rose and said that he had carefully kept a tally of the vote. He noticed that upon recapitulation the name of Mr. Morey, of Ohio, was noted as voting in the affirmative. He was sure that Mr. Morey had not been present when his name was called, but that he had given in his name at the clerk's desk. Would the speaker decline to investigate the question as to whether Mr Morey had been present?

The speaker said that the house had the right to know whether the gentleman from Ohio was recorded at the proper time. The gentle an's name would be put on the list of those present and not voting.

The result of the vote was then announced as: Yeas, 136; nays, 15—the clerk noting a quorum.

Mr. Haugen immediately demanded the previous question on the election case, and the direction "all go out" was given by the democratic managers. But it was not necessary to put this direction into force, for, after an imperative protest by Mr. Cheadle, of Indiana, against the stifling of the debate, Mr. Haugen withdrew his demand and proceeded with an argument of the case.

Mr. Cheadle, of Indiana, opposed the majority resolution and declared that the republicans of the house could not afford to vote Venable out and Langston in. The fourth district of Virginia was reliably republican and it had been carried by the democrats, not because of the popularity of Cleveland or the unpopularity of Harrison, but because of a republican division. It was a perfectly plain and natural statement of fact that the republican party in that district had been beaten solely by reason of irreconciliable differences in the republican party. It had been a race division, with all that such division could imply in the south. The republicans had been fairly beaten, and it was beneath the dignity of the republican party to revise the figures of an election which had been lost to it by thousands of votes. Speaking politically, it would be suicidal for the republican party to seat a man who has led the bolt against the regular republican candidate. He proceeded to eulogize ex-Senator Mahone, and to praise his ability in building up the republican party in Virginia, and predicted that if his leadership were followed, Virginia in a few years would be as reliably republican as was Vermont. Referring to the case under consideration, he said that if there was a little law and less evidence to sustain the contest, there was still less republicanism. He was confident that there never could be a strong and effective republican party in the south, until there were enough white men into it to make it strong and effective. Senator Mahone and the white men of Virginia had made the republican party strong in that state, and he had secured the election of six republicans to congress. The contestant, flying in the face of existing conditions, had raised the race issue, and the result had been that Virginia had now only two republican representatives. Ignorance could not dominate and and overrule intelligence. The republican party in the south could not be built up on negro votes alone. He (Cheadle) was not his colleague's keeper; but, speaking for himself, he said that he could not, under his oath and with his knowledge of the case, vote to seat the contestant, and he hoped, for the good name of the house and for the good name of the great party to which he belonged, that there would be enough republicans voting with him to retain Venable in his seat.

When Mr. Cheadle concluded he was greeted with applause by the democrats. The case then went over until tomorrow, Mr. Haugen stating that he would call the previous question at 2 o'clock tomorrow.

The speaker announced his signature to the river and harbor bill, and then the house, at 5 o'clock, took a recess until 8 o'clock, the evening session to be for the consideration of bills reported by the committe on military affairs.

ARREST OF TOM COLLINS.

A Resolution Before the Senate Inquiring Into It.

WASHINGTON, September 17.—Mr. Sherman, from the committee on foreign relations, reported a resolution, which was agreed to, requesting the president to communicate to the senate such information as he may have on the subject of the arrest of Thomas T. Collins, a citizen of the United States, residing at Manila, in the Philippine islands, by officers of the Spanish government.

Mr. Evarts reported a joint resolution appropriating $5,000 for the new site for Lafayette statue, and stated that the site selected was an esplanade of some eighty feet square at the southeast corner of the treasury reservation—not injuring, he said, but improving the dignity of the treasury enclosure. Passed.

Mr. Blair addressed the senate on a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution conferring representation on the District of Columbia in the two houses of congress and in the electoral college.

The senate then devoted an hour to bills on the calendar, to which there was no objection. Among the bills passed were the following: Senate bill appropriating $30,000 for a public monument on the reservation in the city of Washington to the memory of John Ericsson, inventor and constructor of the Monitor.

The senate bill appropriating $20,000 for the purchase of certain manuscript papers and correspondence of Thomas Jefferson, now in the possession of his descendants.

The senate resumed consideration of the senate bill to establish a United States land court, and to provide for the settlement of private land claims in the states of Nevada, Colorado or Wyoming, and in the territories of New Mexico, Arizona or Utah. The bill occupied the greater part of the afternoon, but was finally laid aside without action.

Mr. Plumb offered a resolution to recommit the house bankruptcy bill to the judiciary committee, with instructions to amend it so as to provide for a system of voluntary bankruptcy only, and to report it back as amended at the earliest practicable moment. He gave notice that he would ask a vote on the resolution tomorrow.

Private pension bills on the calendar were taken up, and eighty of them were passed in thirty minutes.

The senate then adjourned.

Will Expunge It From The Record.

WASHINGTON, September 17.—The meeting of the house judiciary committee today called to consider the resolutions censuring Representative Kennedy, of Ohio, for his speech against the senate and Senator Quay, and to expunge the speech from The Congressional Record, was attended by all the members. Kennedy was present and made a statement in defense of his action and argument to prove that the speech, as published in the Record, was within the requirements of parliamentary law. The committee decided to permit Mr. Adams, of Illinois, to refrain from casting a vote, he having already expressed his opinion of the speech and the duty of the house on the floor, to report a resolution directing the government printer to omit the speech from the permanent copy of the Record. The report will be made to the house this afternoon.

The Conferees Meet.

WASHINGTON, September 17.—The conferees on the tariff bill were in session this morning about an hour, when the meeting of the house required the presence of its conferees, and an adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. But little progress was made at the session today. Consideration of the senate amendments seriatim was begun, but soon they came to a place where an agreement was not possible at once, and that paragraph was passed over for the present, and so it was with other paragraphs until the conferees drifted into a general discussion. One of them said after the separation that, in his opinion, it would not be possible to reach an agreement on all the questions at issue in the bill by Monday next.

Jim, the Penman.

Mr. A. M. Palmer sends a company to Atlanta, next Friday and Saturday, to produce "Jim, the Penman," that, with very few exceptions, is entirely new to theater-goers in this place. There is no play on the American stage today that is more familiar than this one—that tells of a forger's misdeeds—and no other has probably received such extended newspaper comments. The reason therefor was obvious—old material newly but strongly treated. And its hold upon theater-going people seems to be as strong as ever. The acting of Charles Riegel, who plays the part of James Ralston, (the "Jim" of the play), has come in for much favorable comment. But the Nina of next week's production is a new one. Louise Rial, who was Mrs. Cornelia Opdyke in "The Henrietta" of last year, and played that genteel comedy part with so much grace, will this year be Nina, the forger's wife. She has done well thus far—so say the newspaper critics of New York, Boston, Washington and Baltimore; and the pace that Agnes Booth set has not been too fast for her. The Captain Redwood of the company, Edward Travers, is a regular veteran in the part, though he has not been seen here in the play.

James L. Carhart plays Baron Hartfeld, and has been doing excellent work during the past two years, at first with Robson and Crane, in "The Henrietta," when he succeeded in pushing that exceedingly disagreeable character, Nicholas Van Alstyne, into prominence by his strong acting, and more recently with Sol Smith Russell, in "A Poor Relation." His interpretation of his part in "Jim, the Penman," ought to add to his reputation, for its requirements are exactly in his line. The other characters in the drama are in capable hands.

THE STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, September 17.—The general impression in the street last night that the secretary of the treasury would obtain the requisite amount of bonds today, which would insure ease in money at least for the remainder of this month, induced a more hopeful feeling among commission dealers, and there was displayed this morning an increased disposition to buy. The more sanguine bulls pointed to the fact that the late decline having continued for a week, and argued that the reaction, under favorable circumstances, must last at least that time, and were disposed to take the long side for a good turn. The bears, however, while acknowledging there would be a material rally, were not inclined to give as long life, and maintained that the short interest is only moderate, and the liquidation of long accounts would be started by any marked improvement in values. Almost every one was agreed, however, that the bottom had been touched for the present, and buying today was more eager than for some time, and especially so after it became known that the full amount of 4 per cents had been obtained at an even lower figure than it had been expected the secretary would have to pay for them. Traders were almost all working on the long side, and there was a most welcome absence of bear pressure in any portion of the list, although some sluggishness was shown here and there. The correction of the general impression that the secretary said that he could do nothing more for the money market after the acceptance of his pending offers, and the assertion that he said that the impression referred only to 4 per cents, did something to restore the better feeling for the future, as the bears were inclined to make all the capital possible out of the impression referred to. London figures were higher this morning, and while there was not a very urgent demand here, first prices were generally slightly higher than last night's final figures. The market soon developed strength, however, and prices rose steadily until after the bond offerings became known. By that time the whole active list was up from 1 to 1½ per cent, with Lackawanna, Big Four, Chicago Gas and Villards most prominent for gains scored. The bears then attacked the list on the theory that the result of the bond offerings had been discounted, and their efforts to break values was aided by considerable realizations among traders on the advances of the past two days. A large failure in Boston was also used as a club with which to knock off quotations, and before the close almost all the early gains had been wiped out, and in a few instances material losses incurred. The close was quiet but weak, generally at small fractions below the opening figures. Grangers were specially prominent in the late decline. Sales aggregated 259,000 shares listed and 45,000 unlisted.

The Sun's Cotton Review.

NEW YORK, September 17.—Futures opened without decided change, and closed three to five points lower and easy. There was not much of a market today, and at times the floor of the cotton exchange was almost deserted. Fluctuations were slight and unimportant.

Neither party to speculation feels sure of its ground, and there is consequently fitful and feverish action. The bulls recall 1886, when there was a decline to 8⅝, with a crop of 6,550,000 bales, and the bears recall the past year, when prices went to 12¾ cents on a crop of 7,314,000 bales. Two wagers were made today that the next crop will exceed 7,500,000 bales.

Reports from the south are generally cooler, clearing weather. Receipts at ports fall below the estimates but the interior movement continues large. Spot cotton unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, September 17—Wheat—The market presented a more healthy condition early, and a higher range of prices was established. While the feeling was considerably unsettled and nervous, the undertone was stronger, and the situation apparently more encouraging to holders. On the whole, however, operators were disposed to watch the market and conduct their operations cautiously. The opening was rather stronger, and prices ¾@⅞c higher, influenced by stronger foreign market advices, but sudden weakness occured, and prices dropped off quickly 1@1⅛c. The reason for this decline was difficult to ascertain, though it was credited to a rumored failure of a firm in Boston. From that decline a steady rally followed, prices advancing 2¼c, then turned weaker and closed ¼c lower for September and ⅝c higher for December and May than yesterday.

Corn was fairly active, a good volume of business being transacted within 1@1⅛c range. The feeling developed was somewhat firmer, and gains were noted on all futures. The better tone was due in a measure to the receipt of advices from the frost-bitten district saying that the damage by last week's cold snap was more than at first supposed, and to the advance in wheat. The first trades were about the same as yesterday's close, and under a good demand gradually advanced 1@1⅛c, reacted ⅜c, a prominent local trader selling freely, ruled steady and closed with ⅛@¼c gain.

Oats were stronger with fair trading, and prices advanced ¾@1c, reacted ¼@½c and closed easy at intermediate figures.

Mess pork—A good business was transacted. Prices ruled somewhat irregular at the opening within a small range, but later in the day an advance of 12½@15c was established, but the appreciation was not supported to the close.

Lard—Little doing. Prices ruled 2½@5c higher, and the market closed steady at about outside figures.

Short ribs—Rather more doing. Prices were advanced 5@7½c, and the market closed rather firm at about outside figures.
